GERMANS ARE MAKING AIR MATERIALS, SAYS FOCH

Allied Leader Charges Secret Manufacture Is Going On

TREATY IGNORED

Civic Guards Are Kept Under Arms And Other Terms Violated

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Jan. 2.—According to an Associated Press despatch from London, Marshal Foch has reported that the secret manufacture of aerial material has been going on in Germany on a large scale. The situation is considered grave.

Paris, January 3.—According to the Temps, Marshal Foch's report regarding Germany's fulfilment of the disarmament terms shows that she has surrendered 41,000 guns, with inner tubes, 70,000 machine-guns, 163,000 machine-gun barrels, 2,800,000 small arms, 25,000 aeroplane engines and 16,000 airplanes.

The report adds that Germany has failed to fulfill the terms of the Treaty regarding disarmament of the "Civic Guards" in Bavaria and East Prussia, and destruction of the fortresses on her Eastern and Southern frontiers.

The Germans, it states, asked that they might be allowed to keep 390 guns at Koenigsberg and numerous guns at other places, but was allowed to keep only 20 at Koenigsberg 36 at Pillau and 32 at Swinemuende. All other requests were refused.

NEW ARMY TO RIVAL OLD

Paris, Jan. 2.—The German Government has published General Nollet's Note on the disarmament of the Civic Guard.

The German left newspapers generally support the Allies' point of view, and declare that responsibility for any conflict that might break out must rest with the German Government.

Berlin, Jan. 1.—General von Seeckt, the Commander-in-Chief, in a New Year's order to the Army, dwells on the necessity for the soldiers' whole-hearted devotion, and adds: "We will keep our sword sharp and our shield untarnished, and the new army will rival the old in martial efficiency, as an active, living member of the national body."

Berlin, Dec. 31.—In connection with the representations which a deputation of Ruhr coalminers have made to the German Government to carry out a speedy disarmament of the Civic Guard in Bavaria, it is reported that the miners have threatened to deprive Bavaria of coal, if she proves refractory.

GUNS DESTROYED

Berlin, Jan. 1.—It is officially stated that the German Army now numbers 100,000 including 4,000 officers.

Forty thousand guns have been destroyed, and 5,000,000 rifles, 50,000 machine guns, and 26,000 aeroplane motors have been surrendered or destroyed.

All armament factories, it is added, are now engaged in industrial work.

Paris, Jan. 1.—A report from Berlin states that the French Government has handed the German Ambassador a note, enumerating Germany's violations of the Spa agreement.

Newspapers here declare that this note does not constitute the final decision, which must be taken by the Allies jointly, and it is probable that an Allied Conference on the subject will be held shortly.

London, Dec. 31.—Reuter's Paris correspondent telegraphs that M. George Leygues, the French Premier, conferred with the British and Italian Ambassadors yesterday on the subject of the disarmament of Germany.

Marshal Foch's report on the state of execution of the military naval and air clauses of the treaty of Versailles was handed to the Ambassadors Conference yesterday. The Premier had a conversation with Marshal Foch regarding the report today.

It is thought probably that France will request a further Allied conference to settle the disarmament question as soon as possible.

TREATY EVADED

Germany's evasion of her treaty obligations also formed the subject of discussion at a Cabinet meeting at Downing Street yesterday, when Lord d'Abernon,

Hoover Gives Stew Party To Aid Fund For Europe Relief

(Reuter's Service)

New York, December 30.—A banquet organised by Mr. Herbert C. Hoover, the former Food Administrator, at which each guest paid £200 (two hundred sterling) for a simple dinner of beef stew, bread and cocoa, resulted in contributions of over two million dollars to the European Relief Fund.

General Pershing, addressing the guests, expressed himself in favor of disarmament, but stated that no nation could disarm unless all did. He urged an agreement with the leading powers for disarmament.

DEWITT LE ROUX SEVERS ARTERY AND ENDS LIFE

American Who Ended His Life In Hotel On New Year's To Be Buried Today

The funeral of Dewitt N. Le Roux, who adopted an ancient Roman method of suicide by opening an artery and died Sunday at the Savoy Hotel, is to be held at the Bubbling Well Cemetery at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. The inquest in connection with his death was held yesterday afternoon before U.S. Commissioner F. J. Schuhl when a verdict in accordance with the circumstances of the tragedy was rendered.

It is thought that Le Roux, who was 30 years of age, ended his life because he was homesick in a strange land in the holiday season and also by reason of financial worries. He was a native of the State of Mississippi and was honorably discharged from the United States Navy in April of 1919 after five years of service. He was formerly employed by the Standard Oil Company and would have received the offer of a new position yesterday had he lived.

He was seen last a few minutes after midnight on Saturday night when he seemed to be in good spirits and normal in every way. Early the following morning a room boy at the hotel, observing that the light in Le Roux' room was still burning, opened the door. It was apparent that Le Roux had opened the artery of his wrist. The small blade of a safety razor lay on the floor at the bed side. Le Roux had thrown himself on the bed dropping his hand with the opened artery into a pail he had put in place for the purpose. It was in this way that he passed away.

It is not thought that he has any relatives in China.

Garment Workers To Send Machines For Use Of Russ Women

(Reuter's Service)

New York, December 31.—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union plans to send a million dollars worth of sewing and pressing machines to Russia.

Its president, in announcing this proposal, asserted that the United States Government cannot prevent labor organisations from sending machines to kindred organisations even though trade relations have not been resumed.

Wilson Orders Aide To Hold Reception On New Year's Day

Washington, January 1.—President Wilson has decided not to hold the usual New Year's reception, and has deputed Mr. Ben G. Davis, the Acting Secretary of State, to act in his place.

Excess Profits Tax Decreases In Britain

(Reuter's Service)

London, January 1.—The most striking feature of the revenue returns of the Treasury up to December 31 are the decreases of £46,500,000 in the receipts from the excess profit duties and of £10,000,000 from the Customs.

The biggest increases were nearly £55,000,000 from the Excise, £20,000,000 from the income and property taxes, and £150,000,000 under the heading "miscellaneous."

DE VALERA IS REPORTED IN U. S. AND ERIN

Mrs. MacSwiney Is Given Special Honors On Arrival In America

REPORTS ARE TWISTED

Some Despatches Say Irish "President" Has Gone Home; Others Deny

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 2.—The whereabouts of De Valera still remains a mystery. The New York Times refers to a report which it says cannot be verified, to the effect that De Valera sailed for Europe ten days ago under the name of Dudley Field Malone, formerly Collector of the post in New York. The paper adds that the present whereabouts of Mr. Malone, who is a son-in-law of ex-Senator O'Gorman, is unknown.

London, December 30.—Following up the Bishop of Cork's recent pastoral excommunicating murderers, the Archbishop of Tuam has issued a pastoral in which he declares that armed resistance to the Crown is unlawful, and draws attention to the new canon law under which the members of secret societies plotting against the Church and State are, ipso facto, excommunicated.

OATHS NOT BINDING

He says that the oaths of such societies are not binding and Roman Catholic members must leave them.

He also refers to the recent raid on the Aran Islands, which, he says, have always been most peaceful and yet were subjected to an orgy of terrorism by the Crown forces.

London, January 1.—A telegram from New York reports that Sinn Fein officials there declare it has been imperative recently to reiterate that de Valera was hiding in the New York, in order to secure his landing in Ireland. It is assumed that he shipped as one of the crew of some steamer.

Mr. Harry Boland, de Valera's secretary, declared that the object of de Valera's returning to Ireland was to resume the active leadership of the Irish Provisional Government, and to forward the cause of the insurgents.

FAREWELL MESSAGE

He has also distributed de Valera's farewell message to the United States, in which the latter says:

"I am part of the land of the free, the home of the brave. Farewell! May you never know the agony of a foreign master's lash!"

Up to the present there are no signs of de Valera having landed in Ireland. As is usual in such cases, however, the wildest rumors are in circulation in Ireland, including one to the effect that he has landed in Galway with the connivance of the Government, in order to help their peace moves.

New York, January 1.—Mrs. MacSwiney, wife of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, has received the freedom of New York at a special ceremony.

REPORTS CONFLICT

New York, December 30.—De Valera, who was recently reported to have returned to Ireland, has been located in New Rochelle, N.Y., where he is recuperating from his labors.

The Irish-American Committees, organised for relief work in Ireland, have raised a preliminary fund of $300,000.

New York, December 31.—De Valera's secretary announced today that "President" De Valera had arrived safely in Ireland.

London, January 1.—According to the Times, it is definitely stated in Government circles that the negotiations with the Irish Sinn Feiners have partially broken down, owing to the refusal of the advanced Sinn Feiners to give a more effective guarantee than a mere truce.

London, January 2.—Forty alleged Sinn Feiners have been arrested as the result of a big military raid at Bantry, County Cork.

BURN HOUSES IN CORK

London, January 2.—In accordance with an order from the Military Governor, seven houses in the town of Midleton, County Cork, were destroyed early yesterday morning, "because their inhabitants are bound to have known of the recent ambush and attack on military parties, and neglected to inform the police or military authorities."

Each householder was handed a notice, stating why his house was destroyed, and each resident was given one hour in which to remove his valuables, but not the

Martial Law In Chinese City On New Year's Day; Feared A General Strike

Military Authorities Had Rumor Of Bolshevik Move; Holiday Was Well Observed Here

Temporary martial law was declared by the military authorities in Chinese Shanghai on New Year's Day upon receipt of a report that certain Bolshevik agents planned a general strike on that day under the pretext of protesting against the exaction of the new famine surtax.

The day, however, passed without any disturbance and the protests of the shopkeepers against the new tax took a passive form. While many of the shops hoisted the national colors in observation of the day, small white banners were seen also, bearing the characters meaning "We respect the Constitution, but oppose the oppressing taxes."

Nanking Road, Foochow Road, North Szechuen Road, Honan and Seward Roads were especially well-beflagged and many of the shops were closed to business during the day, while there were receptions at the headquarters of various Chinese officials.

President Hsu Shih-chang received New Year's greetings from the Diplomatic Corps and officials of the Republic at the Huajentang on New Year's Day.

New Year Honors of the President included the presentation of a sword with nine lions to General Lu Yung-ting of Kwangsi; the conferring of the Third Order of Merit to Governor Hsiung Ko-wu of Szechuen and Tan Hao-ming of Kwangtung; the Fourth Order of Merit to Foreign Minister W. W. Yen, Defense Commissioner Liu Hsiang of Chungking and General Li Shen-chen and the First Class Chiaoho with the Grand Cordon and Precious Rays.

Locally, all the official bureaus, while closed for business, observed the day with receptions and tiffins. The Bureau of Foreign Affairs held a reception in the morning. The Commissioner, Mr. Hsu Yuan, assisted by his secretaries, Messrs. S. K. Chen and the Magistrates of the Mixed Courts received the members of the Consular Body.

Similar receptions were held by the Admiralty, the Defense Commissioner and at the Taoying's Yamen, the Magistrate's Yamen and the Office of the Constabulary.

The Kiangsu Educational Association, the Y.M.C.A. and the Street Unions were among the local organisations celebrating the occasion with fitting programs.

Director Shen Hsin-ching of the association and Vice-Minister of Education Yuan Shih-tao were the principal speakers at the meeting of the Kiangsu Educational Association. Dr. Huang Yen-pei presided. Muscial numbers were given by Miss E. Tong, Miss Tang Yin, Yu Pai-kao and Soo Hsoa-chin. Masters Moh Kai-teh and Moh Kai-tseng, the sons of Mr. H. Y. Moh, gave an exhibition of boxing.

The Y.M.C.A. held open house, with a muscial program for the members and their families and an exhibition of the work of its students.

Open house was also held at the headquarters of the Street Unions on Avenue Edward VII. A number of directors of the union called at the office during the day. In the evening a banquet was held which was attended by over 30 directors. Mr. Lu Shen-tsai presided. Speeches were delivered by directors Yu Ko-tseng, Chen Cho-koo, and Woo Tse-hao.

Branch street unions and schools also held celebrations.

DECORATIONS CONFERRED

(Reuter's Service)

A number of mandates were issued for the New Year, conferring the following distinctions: Order of Merit, Fourth Class, to the Foreign Minister, Dr. W. W. Yen, and Civil Governor Li Ching-cheng. Order of Merit, Third Class, to Tuchun Tan Hou-ming. The Nine Lions Sword to Lu Yung-ting. A special order eulogised the services of Tuchun Liu Tseng-hou. Dr. Yen is the only member of the Cabinet to be decorated. As already announced, Li Ching-cheng has just been appointed Civil Governor of Kwangsi, Lu Yung-ting Tupan of Kwangsi and Kwangtung, and Tan Mou-ming Tuchun of Kwangsi.

Another Mandate has recalled Gen. Chang Kuang-chen, and appointed Gen. Tsai Chen-hsun Tuchun of Kansu, while Gen. Ma Fu-hsiang is appointed Tutung of Chahar. Gen. Lu Hung-tao will act as Tuchun pending the arrival of Gen. Tsai Shen-hsun.

Finally a Mandate was issued pointing out the close connection between self-government and the National Administration. It orders a conference to be held in Peking, consisting of representatives of Civil Governors, Provincial Assemblies and special areas, such as Jehol, with a view to harmonising the Central and Provincial Administrations.

"Incorporate The American Community!"

We direct our readers' special attention to the article under the above heading, written by Mr. William S. Fleming, which appears on our editorial page in today's issue, and will welcome suggestions concerning it.

MR. Longfellow, or Mr. Dante, or some other warm weather bard, palpably unacquainted with the Orient, once wrote a deathless line about snow, and all the local papers which came out yesterday managed in some way or other to echo the sentiment therein expressed.

This is a minority report.

The adjective beautiful is going to get into this account just once. And it's a relief to have gotten it out of our system thus early in the column. If ye editor, in assigning the weather story to this veracious scribe did so under impression that a lot of joyous exclamations and a string of poetic descriptive was going to bubble into type, Ye Ed proved himself just naturally too optimistic for words. This from one who was born and nurtured in a clime where there's a minimum of three feet of snow for seven months out of the dozen and where if the ozone gets above minus-forty in temperature it starts heated discussions as to the relative merits of the Westinghouse and the Thomaselectricedison style of fans. And from one who still asserts that that country is the world's greatest.

Snow in Shanghai is something to rave about, all right, but not in the perverted modern significance of the expression. It's about as appropriate and inspiring as a diet of whale blubber would be in the South Sea Island. Snow in Shanghai is probably the most futile and unconvincing of natural phenomena. Still this atmospheric inanity really transpired among us Sunday, and the facts must be chronicled, as thus:

The "mantle of white," as an esteemed contemporary effuses, began to descend on Sunday forenoon and continued to descend until some time later on, by which time a man wearing a pair of hip boots could cross any street in the Settlement dryfooted. Early yesterday morning the mercury had considerately adjusted itself to conditions insofar that quite a quantity of the stuff remained on the streets in a non-liquid state. Thereby arousing frantic enthusiasm among the personnel of the street cleaning dep't. Before the day was very far advanced, however, the neat piles scooped to the roadsides had got acclimated and everything underfoot was a lovely mess.

Nearly every foreigner one met, and the opposition press without exception, described the flurry as an "auspicious opening for 1921." The Chinese, they burbled, must be beside themselves with glee, forseeing, in some occult way, by reason of the flinging down of this dismal and dingy film of slush, a radiant period of prosperity ahead. The scribe, being of a taciturn, cynical turn of mind, immediately suspected such prognosis, or propaganda, as having emanated from some incurably hopeful piecegoods merchant, all other omens having been

U. S. FLEETS TO UNITE AT PANAMA; JAPANESE SEEK CHINESE ALLIANCE

British Dominions Urged To Unite With America Against Coolie Labor

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Dec. 31.—The American papers have recently been calling attention to the possibility of forming combination between Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the United States with the view of maintaining a united front against Japanese immigration.

The idea seems to have originated in the recent speech of Senator Lodge, in which he declared that he would welcome some kind of arrangement with the Dominions regarding Asiatic immigration, and declared that their danger was the same as ours.

NO FORMAL NEGOTIATIONS

Searching investigation, however, has failed to produce evidence pointing to the existence or progress of any formal negotiations with a view to the conclusion of such an arrangement, and Senator Lodge has declined to elaborate his views.

Embassy circles point out that at present there appears to be no occasion for the adoption of any new policy by Great Britain or the Dominions as regards Japan, while, by treaty arrangements some of which far antedate Japan's rise to the position of a first-class power, the right of the local dominion governments to control Japanese immigration and similar questions has been fully established, and these powers have been exercised for many years without protest from Japan.

DOMINIONS' POSITION

Therefore, it is declared, the position of these Dominions is radically different from that of the Pacific Coast states of America, where the Japanese claim they have been enjoying certain privileges of American citizenship under the provisions of the Japanese-American Treaty.

Washington, Dec. 30.—A meeting of the California delegation to Congress discussed the Japanese land legislation, but adjourned without formulating any definite course of action.

New York, Jan. 1.—According to the London correspondent of the Associated Press, a wireless message from Moscow states that it is expected there will soon be full relations between Japan and the Far Eastern Republic, and that trade between these two countries is already proceeding. It is added that Japan will soon begin negotiations with Soviet Russia in regard to trading relations.

DISCUSS ARMAMENTS

London, Dec. 30.—The Westminster Gazette, in a leader referring to Senator Borah's resolution requesting the President of the United States to negotiate with the Great Powers for a reduction of naval armaments, says that America may be sure that any advance along the path of reducing naval armaments will be met half way by Great Britain, but that if the United States builds a great fleet, reason in these matters has small chance of a hearing, for building will inevitably begin in every country having large interests on the sea, and the beggaring competition in land armaments will be transferred to the water. It emphasises similarly that American suspicions arising from the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, which have been referred to in the Times, are baseless.

Dealing with the statement of Baron Hayashi in the Morning Post that the Japanese navy is not aggressive, but necessary for defence, and that new ships are necessary owing to the fact that the present Japanese warships are being rendered useless by Great Britains super-dreadnoughts et cetera, the Westminister Gazette says that is the kind of argument that will lead to endless competition in new arms of every kind. It declares that the bitterest lesson history has taught is that vast armaments neither ensure peace nor give security in war. We must, it declares, find a better way, namely conciliation, arbitration and mutual combination to guarantee all nations against the ambitions or aggressions of any one power.

Concessions May Be Made To This Country On Hungchun Affair

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, December 31.—The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Daniels, has announced that he will be unable to witness the first joint maneuvers of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets in Panama Bay, and off the West Coast of South America next month, owing to the hearings in Congress of the Naval Appropriations Bill.

The Atlantic fleet will have its rendezvous at Norfolk on January 3 and leave on the following day for Panama.

The Pacific Fleet will sail from San Diego on January 7.

Shanghai, January 3.—The Shun Pao today prints the following from its Peking correspondent:

It is reported in diplomatic circles here that the Japanese Government has instructed Mr. Obata, Japanese Minister at Peking, as follows:

"As there are signs of approaching hostilities between Japan and the United States, and as a close relationship exists between China and Japan, the two countries should speedily arrange for mutual protection. You should make a secret, tactful arrangement with the Chinese Government for united action."

OFFICIAL MESSAGES

According to the same correspondent, the foregoing would appear to be confirmed, to a certain extent, by two telegrams recently despatched by Hu Wei-teh, Chinese Minister at Tokio, to his Government.

In the first Mr. Hu notifies the Waichiaopu of a rumor afloat in Tokio to the effect that Japan has decided to make considerable concessions to China in connection with the Hungchun affair.

The Japanese Government, Mr. Hu says, is anxious to show a highly conciliatory attitude towards China, because relations between Japan and America are daily growing worse. Mr. Hu understands that the Tokio Government has already instructed Mr. Obata in this sense, but he is unable to obtain authentic confirmation of the report, as the Japanese Foreign Office is maintaining the utmost secrecy on the subject.

NEGOTIATIONS ASKED

In his second telegram, continues the correspondent, the Chinese Minister reports that he has been actually approached by the Japanese Foreign Office to open negotiations regarding the Hungchun and Chientao affairs, on the basis of complete evacuation of the Japanese troops and the entrusting of the policing of these districts to the Chinese.

Mr. Hu asked for instructions. The Waichiaopu replied that he should open negotiations with the Japanese Government, and that he should demand (1) an indemnity from Japan for the damage done to Chinese interests by Japanese soldiery in the Hungchun and Chientao districts, and (2) a guarantee that such incidents would not occur again.

No confirmation of the Shun Pao correspondent's story or its implications has been received from any other source.

CARDINAL GIBBONS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Baltimore, January 2.—Bishop Corrigan has announced that the last sacrament has been administered to Cardinal Gibbons, whose condition, he says, has become worse since his illness. He requested all pastors to recite the Litany of the Blessed Virgin after each mass, and the religious communities are asked to redouble their prayers.

Girls Arrested For Bootlegging In N.Y.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, January 2.—A sensation has been caused by the arrest of two girls, who were clerks in the office of the Director of Prohibition, and three men, on a charge of withdrawing liquor to the value of £250,000 from bond. It is stated that the liquor was afterwards sold at enormous profits, and thousands of dollars are alleged to have been spent in bribing minor officials.

Soviet Warned By Labor Minister At Washington Rebel Council Must End

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, December 31.—Secretary of Labor, Mr. Wilson, in a letter to the attorney representing Martens, the Soviet representative here, says that as long as the Soviet Government seeks to stir up insurrection against the United States Government, the Soviet's representatives here will be subject to deportation.

While expressing America's friendship for the Russian people, the letter states that there was cumulative and conclusive evidence that the military dictatorship of Russia was appropriating large sums to disrupt the American Government. Mr. Wilson branded as insulting and indicative of the brutal and materialistic conceptions of the Communist group in Russia, the intimations contained in the attorney's letter to him that profitable trade with Russia was so important in American minds as to permit American "institutions to be undermined and destroyed and our liberties submerged if we can but have access to that trade."

KRASSIN RECALLED

London, December 30.—A wireless despatch from Moscow states that Krassin, the Soviet representative in London, has been recalled to consult with his Government regarding "Great Britain's evasions of her obligations as regards trading with Russia."

Reuter learns that the Government has no knowledge of this reported recall of Krassin, with whom negotiations were in progress yesterday when it was arranged that they should be continued tomorrow.

It is denied that Great Britain desires to depart from the terms of the agreement reached in June

Although the vote of the Tours Congress to adhere to the Moscow Internationale has already been recorded by Reuter, the following delayed telegram from Paris is of interest for its clear outline of the different currents of opinion which prevailed in the French Socialist Party at the opening of the Congress.

Paris, Dec. 27 (delayed).—The French Socialist Party is holding a general convention at Tours to discuss a number of important questions, chief of which is whether the party shall join the Moscow Third Internationale and accept the communists' program drawn up by Moscow.

From the outset it was apparent that the delegates were widely divided on policy, four distinct groups being distinguishable.

FOUR DIVISIONS

(1) The out and cut extremists who accept the Moscow program without reservation.

(2) The Moderates, who accept the Moscow program with reservations (this group so far appears to be in a majority).

(3) The so-called Reconstruction group who are in favor of joining the Third Internationale but deny that Moscow has any right to dicate its socialistic tenets to the world at large and.

(4) The old Socialist party who oppose adhesion to the Third Internationale and support the doctrine advocated by Japan of resistance to Lenin's Utopian schemes.

FEAR SPLIT IN FRANCE

The fourth group are afraid lest Bolshevism, which has already produced a split in the socialist parties of Germany, Italy and Switzerland, may contrive to achieve a like result in France. The socialist deputy M. Paul Faure has already pointed out that the Bolshevist doctrine is a bugbear to the masses in France, and that it was owing to the popular hostility to Leninism that the great strikes of last spring utterly collapsed. This is one of the arguments adduced by the forth group.

The Temps sums up the situation as follows: "In any case, the French nation will not stand being bullied by a handful of fanatics and any Bolshevist movement will find the Government ready, and backed by the full support of an immense majority of the French people who firmly believe that salvation lies in tireless toil not in revolution."

Germans Making Air Materials

British Ambassador at Berlin and Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson were present.

The Petit Parisien understands Reuter's Paris correspondent reports, that the British Cabinet decided to support France's protest against Germany's retention under arms of powerful forces of Security Police and to approve any action France might eventually take to compel Germany to carry out her treaty obligations.

The Daily Chronicle on the other hand learns that no decision will be taken by the British Government until Germany's reply to the latest Allied representations has been received.

Later.—Reuter's Berlin correspondent telegraphs: "Germany in her reply to the Inter-Allied Military Control Commission's note of December 29, (pointing out that instead of demilitarising the Security Police and amalgamating it with the civilian police the latter has really been absorbed in the former while the Security Police is still armed with machine-guns, etc.) protests against the assertion that she is infringing the treaty of Versailles regarding the police. The Note also demands "fairer judgment" and claims that Germany's disarmament measures fully comply with the treaty."

worn impotently to a frazzle in that connection. Therefore, the unbiased opinion of the man in the street was sought. This chanced to be the humble operative of a public ricsha.

Two Hundred Warships Built By U.S. Last Year

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, December 8 (by mail).—Nearly 200 warships, including one super-Dreadnought and 96 destroyers, were completed for the American Navy during the fiscal year ended last June 30, and more than 100 others, including eleven super-Dreadnoughts and six great battle-cruisers, were building at that time.

The annual report of Rear-Admiral David W. Taylor, chief of the Bureau of Construction and repair, which contains this information, also discloses that the Navy Department is engaged in developing and constructing new types of aircraft, including great rigid and semi-rigid airships and seaplanes similar to those which undertook the trans-Atlantic flight last year. Besides the dirigible which is building in England for the United States, the Navy is building a dirigible at home.

Aeroplanes and seaplanes building include four of the N C type for service with the battle fleet, making a total of eight of this class. In the four new craft now building are embodied the lessons learned from the trans-Atlantic flight.

The Navy also is building a small number of interchangeable land aeroplanes and seaplanes for the Marine Corps and two types of torpedo-carrying seaplanes, one to be of all-metal construction.

With the delivery of the super-dreadnought Tennessee this year by the New York Navy Yard, the first line battleships with the Atlantic and Pacific fleets were increased to eighteen. Besides the destroyers added to the fleet last year, other new ships completed included 18 submarines, 45 eagle boats and ten mine-sweepers. In addition, a number of naval tugs were delivered.

Besides the 11 battleships and 6 battle-cruisers building, there are under construction 10 scout cruisers, 71 destroyers, and 47 submarines. Some of the destroyers have been delivered since last June 30. Only two of the eleven battleships building are expected to be delivered next year, viz., the Tennessee and Maryland. The Colorado is to be delivered in 1922 and the others in 1923 or later.

TRADE WITH RUSS FIRMS TO BE TAKEN UP BY BRITONS

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan 2.—According to the Sunday Times the Anglo-Russian Trade Agreement is now drafted and ready for signature, only the technical details remaining to be adjusted. The outlook for an immediate resumption of commercial relations is regarded as very bright.

The Observer states that Krassin yesterday received an official request from Moscow for his return to Russia for the purpose of consulting with his Government. It is expected that he will be absent for about five weeks unless the whole discussion collapses in the meanwhile. This, however, is not anticipated.

NO COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH RUSS SAY CHINA LEADERS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Dec. 31.—Interviewed by the Peking correspondent of the Kokusai News Agency yesterday, an official of the Waichiaopu stated that there was no truth in the reports that a Russo-Chinese commercial treaty had been concluded.

The official pointed out that Chang Chao-lin had been sent to Russia by Tuan Chi-jui's party and that Chang had nothing to do with the resumption of commercial relations between China and Russia.

China, the official continued, had recently sanctioned the provisional trade agreement concluded between the Tuchun of Sinkiang and a representative of Russian Turkestan early this year, and it had been suggested that a provisional agreement of a similar character might be made in order to facilitate Sino-Russian trade on the border. The Cabinet had discussed this matter.

Therefore, declared the official, if the Government which M. Yourin represented proved in fact able to carry out the assurances they had given regarding the protection of Chinese interests in Siberia, it might be that the Chinese Government would take up with M. Yourin's Mission the question of a similar trade agreement.

Short Time Plan Of British Officials For Employees

(Reuter's Service)

London, January 1.—With a view to providing employment for the greatest possible number of employes, either at present engaged or recently discharged, it is announced that the Cabinet proposes as far as possible to place all Government industrial establishments on short time working.

The Government has also asked municipal and private employers to take similar action, and an appeal is being made to the trade unions to co-operate in this endeavor to tide over the present period of depression.

Later.—The Government's scheme to mitigate unemployment by short time working is now issued in the form of an appeal through the Federation of British Industries and the Chambers of Commerce of Great Britain to employers to introduce short time all round. It suggests the co-operation of trade unions to this end.

It mentions that the Government is already applying short time in its dockyards and naval establishments, and has planned to do everything possible, but it relies upon the assistance of employers and workpeople to liminish unemployment.

The Minister of Labor, Dr. MacNamara, has written a letter to the Federation of Building Operatives, expressing regret at not having received by December 31 any definite reply to his proposals for the dilution of labor, with a view to finding additional employment. He hopes, however, that, as this is a matter of urgency, a definite and final reply with be received within a forthight.

The Ministry of Labor announces that over 8,000 men are working on the new arterial roads, in addition to which number many are employed by local authorities for the maintenance of main roads, and miscellaneous schemes, while 7,000 are being employed on sewerage and housing schemes, which have been accelerated so as to meet the present situation.

Lord St. Davids' Committee on Unemployment has been sitting continuously, and has already approved a number of relief schemes.

D'Annunzio Denied Right To Lead Legionaries As They Leave Fiume

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, Jauuary 1.—The agreement between the Fiume delegates and General Ferrario, signed yesterday, provides that the legionaries shall evacuate Fiume tomorrow, returning to their depots.

D'Annunzio's request that he should be allowed to leave the city at the head of his legionaries was refused.

Rome, December 31.—The Italian terms for the surrender of Fiume include; the release of all prisoners, the restoration of all arms, ammunition and other stores seized from the Italians, that all legionaries except the inhabitants leave the town within five days, the immediate abandonment of the Islands of Veglia and Arbe, and d'Annunzio's departure from Fiume. It is expected that the Regency will accept these terms.

Rome, Jan. 2.—A meeting which took place yesterday between the delegates from Fiume and General Ferrario, at which the final details of the garrison's surrender were arranged. It was agreed that the authorities and citizens of Fiume should be left to decide d'Annunzio's fate. The Italian regulars will be withdrawn from the frontiers as soon as all the conditions have been fulfilled.

There have been several scraps between insubordinate legionaries and Italians, in which the latter were obliged to use their artillery and machine-guns.

Paris, Jan. 2.—According to advices from Rome the evacuation of the Fiume legionaries began today. It is added that the Regular Italian troops will withdraw to the international boundary line as soon as the evacuation of the legionaries has been completed.

The Life of Concrete Floors Is No Longer In Nature's Hands

A New Scientific Discovery

In the past concrete floors were left to nature once they were laid. Constant walking, heavy trucking and daily usage soon broke the surface and resulted in holes and cracks. Crystalline particles of dust floated into the air, and ground out the delicate bearings of machinery.

These conditions seemed impossible to overcome until science developed a new concrete hardener which puts the life of concrete under human control.

By a simple process new floors can be made to any degree of hardness from that required by ordinary usage to the floors of factories and godowns subject to the severest kind of wear. Almost overnight your present concrete floors can be totally reformed. Then, floors can be made to "set" even in the coldest weather.

All these are made possible by the

OAK FLOORING AND PANELLING

Stand The Hard Test Of Time

When installing any other wood than Oak for flooring or panelling, one item must be taken into consideration in counting the cost, and that is the fact that in a very few years the floor will have to be renewed. With Oak, however, at the end of a quarter of a century, the flooring and panelling is not only more pleasing to the eye than when new, but is also worth a great deal more.

WE SUPPLY OAK FOR FLOORING, WAINSCOTING, PANELLING, ETC., ETC., KILN-DRIED AND QUALITY GUARANTEED

We give all orders personal attention. After you have placed your order with us, the flooring will be laid and all work carried out under the personal supervision of a foreign expert of the Company. This supervision costs you nothing and we prefer to do this for you.

Insist that all lumber for flooring and panelling for interior work bears the "Three Pines" Trade Mark, and the letters "KD" signifying kiln-dried, thus ensuring its perfect quality, and suitability for the severe climatic conditions of China.

CHANG TSO-LIN IN ATTACK ON YEH KUNG-CHO

Removal Of Communications Head Imminent As War Lord Censures Him

MAY AFFECT CABINET

Entire Executive Body May Change As A Result Of Mukden Chief's Anger

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, January 3 1921.—A change of the Minister of Communications, Yeh Kung-cho, which may affect the entire Cabinet is expected to be brought about by the receipt at Peking of a telegram from Mukden in which the Fengtien War Lord, Chang Tso-lin, severely censures the Minister.

It is believed that Chang is displeased with Yeh on account of the latter's failure to keep his promise made to the War Lord at the time when Yeh assumed his portfolio through the assistance of Chang. Yeh was to aid Chang in matters of communication, according to the arrangements.

But the recent garrisoning of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway in Shantung by Tsao Kun's troops showed that Yeh has been playing close with the Chihilists and has aroused the suspicion of Chang. Tsao is also accumulating much rolling stock for himself.

A cleavage also exists between the Minister of Interior, Chang Chi-tang, and the Minister of Communications as a result of the refusal of the latter to apply the proceeds of the surcharges for the famine relief work through the Government Famine Relief Bureau, which is under the control of the Ministry of the Interior.

INDIA WILL SEEK HOME RULE BUT OPPOSES VIOLENCE

(Reuter's Service)

Nagpur, January 1.—At the Indian National Congress, Mr. Gandhi's resolution, amending the constitution to the effect that the object of the Congress is the attainment of home rule by all legitimate and peaceful means, was adopted with only two dissentients.

The Congress also passed a resolution that the scheme of non-co-operation, without violence, adopted earlier by the Congress, including the renunciation of voluntary association with the present Government, and refusal to pay taxes, should be partially or wholly enforced when determined upon by the Congress Committee.

Nagpur, December 30.—Twenty-two thousand delegates, including several thousand women, attended the Nationalist Congress today.

There was some disturbance among the Bengalis over the election of the committee, and the members came to blows.

The chairman of the Cow Conference declared that the cow question was insoluble until home rule could be attained.

The All-India Students' Conference passed a resolution in favor of an immediate and unconditional boycott of Government and Government-aided schools.

Mr. Gandhi moved a resolution amending the constitution to the effect that the object of the Congress is the attainment of home rule by all legitimate and peaceful means. Bandit Malavija gave notice of an amendment adding after the words "home rule;"—"or full responsible government within the British Commonwealth."

Lord Chalmers Will Discuss War Debt Of Britain To U.S.

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, January 1.—It is announced that Lord Chalmers, formerly for many years Joint Secretary to the Treasury, has been selected as the British delegate to negotiate with the United States Treasury on the question of refunding Great Britain's war debt and other cognate matters.

The Treasury officials here are of opinion that the discussion will be brief. The rate of interest will probably be fixed on the basis of 5 percent, but Mr. Houston, the Secretary of the Treasury, advocates a lower rate, saying: "We must deal with our Allies' debts fairly."

WILSON VETOES BILL

(Reuter's Service)

Washington December 31.—President Wilson has vetoed the Congressional resolution designed to suspend the provision of the Clayton Act prohibiting carrier concerns from having any dealings with any other concern having an interlocking directorate with a carrier company.

Rubber Production May Be Stopped To Benefit Market

(Reuter's Service)

London, December 30.—The Times city correspondent notes that owing to continued meanness in the rubber market some of the planation companies are urging the Rubber Growers' Association to adopt measures curtailing the output of rubber by more than the present twenty-five percent. Indeed, some propose that the Association bring about a complete cessation of tapping.

It is unlikely, however, that the Association will act precipitately. Some experts consider that it would be impossible to enforce a complete stoppage of production, and that probably the industry will surmount the present ordeal by a compromise between restriction and the voluntary curtailment of production.

Athens Government Is Facing New Problem; Move Made At Smyrna

(Reuter's Service)

Smyrna, December 31.—The Greek Archbishop today met some of the leading Turkish Nationalists of Smyrna, and the suggestion was made that local Greeks and Turks combine for the formation of a new Government in opposition to the Athens Government. The Turks replied that there was no need of such a combination, as they believed that Smyrna would soon be restored to Turkey.

London, December 31.—The Daily Chronicle Athens correspondent telegraphs: The Greek Government are seriously embarrassed by the remnants of General Wrangel's starving, typhus-stricken army in Gallipoli who are armed with 10,000 rifles. It is feared they may mutiny.

The Greeks have cordoned off the peninsula and are supplying the Russian troops with stores.

CAMP'S ALL-AMERICA TEAM INCLUDES REPRESENTATIVES FROM ALL SECTIONS OF U.S.

Lourie Of Princeton Named Quarterback On Eleven Which Is Greatest Aggregation Of Stars In Game's History; Ohio State Took Greatest Advantage Of Modern Rules

Representatives of every section of the country are included in Walter Camp's All-American teams that appears in the Dec. 18 issue of Collier's Weekly.

Camp considers the 1920 aggregation of stars the greatest he has ever picked.

"With the first team," he says, "we put into the hands of that remarkable little general, Lourie, all the weapons of attack that we can possibly give him by the use of Way, Stinchcomb and Gipp. We put in front of him a line of supreme power. A line upon which we can count upon three remarkable men for getting down the field under a kick—Fincher, Carney and Keck—men in Keck and Scott who are liable to hurry any punter and very likely to block a kick; men in Callahan and Keck who can alternate in roving defense; a tackle in Scott who can not only smash the interference but who is quick enough to seize the runner, and in Stein a steady passer who feeds the ball well to his backs at all times.

"On the present schedule the ranking of teams is impossible. But there is one quality that goes forth a great deal and that is the ability to rise to the occasion when necessary and when this test is applied we find that the outstanding teams were Princeton, Harvard, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh, Penn State, California, Virginia Military Institute, Boston College and Ohio State.

"They all came through and would be the ones selected to carry a game anywhere. Their methods differed largely. Princeton had the greatest variety and made the largest use of generalship. Ohio State took the greatest advantage of the modern rules. California ran up the largest scores. Harvard and Pittsburgh were most cautious and calculating. Boston, Notre Dame and Virginia Military Institute were most aggressive."

FOOTBALL CLUB ELEVEN, RANGERS AND ENGINEERS ARE WINNERS AT SOCCER

S.F.C. Beats Internationals 8-0, Latter Team Showing With Eight Men; Rangers 2, B.A.T. 0; Electricity Dept. Bows To Engineers; Snow Knocks Schedules Silly

Weather conditions for the week end were hardly those desired, either by players or onlookers. The week's rain had taken all resilience out of the ground and good football was out of the question. The only lucky teams were the Engineers and the Electricity Dept., who turned out on Saturday morning and had things dry overhead at least. In the afternoon just before the half time whistles went, the rain decided to get busy and a steady downpour ensued which refused to let up, and getting well under weigh, decided to turn to snow, and effectually smother the League games scheduled for yesterday.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

Engineers vs. Electricity

This was played on the Police Ground and a fast, and vigorous game ensued. The Engineers turned out with one good resolution for the New Year which they kept i.e. to take two points from the Electrics. They had to go all the way to do it, and it was largely due to the exhilarating effect of their vocal supporters' efforts that they managed to settle matters shortly before time. The Dept's. defense seemed somewhat anxious to switch the current on to the man rather than the ball and it did not pay. Roach was playing a fine game for the Dept. For the winners Soppitt was specially conspicuous and opened the scoring for the Engineers.

Engineers .. 3 Electricity .. 2

Recs. v. Navy

The Recs. were very fortunate in scraping through with a draw in this game. The Navy put out a good bustling team, but it was drawn from three ships and the forward combination was not up to that of the Recs. McLachlan opened for the Recs. fairly early in the game which woke the Navy up and soon after, Seaman Berry equalised, then just before half time the Navy rushed the Recs. goal in force and Stoker Betchetti scored with goalkeeper and ball. In the second half the Navy kept pressing but could not score, and McLachlan equalised for the Recs. with a hefty low shot which just got there. Mr. W. E. Wilson refereed to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Recs. ..... 2 Navy 2

S.F.C. vs. International

This was a somewhat uninteresting game, as the Inters. only turned out eight men, so the Club had no difficulty in winning easily.

S.F.C. .... 8 International .. 0

Rangers vs. B.A.T.

This was played on Widows Monument Ground, and a hard game resulted.

Rangers .... 2 B.A.T. 0

Public School vs. St. Xaviers

This game was postponed owing to ground conditions.

MONDAY'S GAMES

Senior Division

S.F.C. vs. Recs.

Junior Division

Recs. vs. Electricity Dept.
Rangers vs. Navy.

All the above teams conceded a walk-over to the weather.

American Football Comes Next Saturday; Cits Practice Today

Rain and snow conspired against the American footballers on Sunday but the Civilians and U. S. S. New Orleans elevens will battle at the Race Course next Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the Women's Famine Relief Society.

Scheduling the game next Saturday means that Charley Glauque will be back from Nanking to play tackle and that the civilians and sailors will be in better shape for the exhibition.

And the Sunday objection is overcome. This will be a source of satisfaction to all fans as the American School students, among others, will now be able to see the game.

Several hundred dollars will be added to the W.F.R.S. treasury, too, and several young Americans are going to help sell the tickets for the game. Through the courtesy of Secretary Adams, tickets will be on sale at the American Club bar.

The Shanghai eleven will hold a signal drill at noon today in the S.V.C. Drill Hall, Foochow Road.

CHRISTMAS 'UNT AT TIENTSIN WON BY COMMONS

Fourth Paper Chase Of Season Sees Lady Riders Perform Well

In a rattling good finish, with plenty of thrills in the last few yards, Mr. A. C. Commons won his second Hunt this season at Tientsin on Christmas Day on that excellent mount, The Marquis.

Of the 17 starters, twelve were well bunched in the final run home from the last check, a halt mile or so out and they pounded over the hard ground as a cavalry charge. Within a hundred yards of the flags, Mr. Swann's fast griffin, leading by about two lengths, stumbled over an awkward jump and pitched his rider heavily in front of him. Mr. Swann had the presence of mind to lie low, for three ponies successively galloped over him, the hoof of one just touching his head. Mr. Swann suffered no injuries, which was some compensation for losing the hunt.

BENBOW ROWE IN

Mr. Shirrell, on Neuralgia, close behind Swann when he fell, lost a stirrup and had to concede third place to Mr. C. W. L. Way, on Hermit, in the last few strides. Major Arden, riding some 167 pounds on the Polo Bird, did excellently in coming into second place and winning the Heavy Weight cup. The last check had the effect of reversing the position of the field, as Benbow-Rowe had a lead up to this point of some fifty yards but was overtaken when he went off in the wrong direction to seek paper. The "scent" was picked up ahead of the check in line almost direct with the course up to where the check was found.

Mr. Wasser on Geneva, and Mr. Jorg on Do-Re-Mi, who have both ridden consistently well in hunts took fifth and sixth places respectively.

MRS. FEENE THROWN

The course was unanimously declared well laid with special reference to the series of Dug-out jumps alongside the railway embankment. The distance was eight miles, approximately, and covered ground similar to the first hunt. It begun close to the Detring Villa and traversed country towards the river by the brick kilns crossing the railway line and returning near the group of buildings on high ground to the southeast of the Race Course.

Mrs. Feeney, who had hard luck in the last hunt after getting within a half mile of the finish where her pony gave out, was thrown a furlong or so from the start by her mount, a new one, stumbling over a jump. Mrs. Feeney was unable to catch the animal in time to continue the run.

Miss Fogg, again well up behind the gentlemen, had the misfortune to see her brave little mount subside at the last jump, after going the entire distance.

BIG CROWD OUT

Mr. Briault, who has an excellent griffin, again was unfortunate to have it unseat him out in the country, Mr. Briault is a consistent heavyweight rider and deserves better luck than he has had in the last few chases.

A large number of spectators, permitted by the holiday and pleasant weather, were amply rewarded for their forty-seven minutes wait while the hunt was in progress by the interesting finish.

Mrs. Greaves, wife of the Manager of the local branch of "Taikoo," presented the prizes at the conclusion and was rewarded by the usual toast in her honor.

The first six past the post were:

Mr. A. C. Commons on The Marquis.
Major Arden (H. W.) on Polo Bird.
Mr. C. W. L. Way on Hermit.
Mr. C. Shirrell on Neuralgia.
Mr. Wasser on Geneva.
Mr. Jorg on Do-Re-Mi.

CHINESE 'Y' PLAYS AT ROWING CLUB FLOOR THIS EVE

Crack Quintet, After Clean Slate On Home Floor, To Seek Honors Away

The Chinese Y.M.C.A. basketball team, after cleaning everything in sight on the home floor, will start a campaign for victories on other fields tonight. The Chinese quintet will tackle the Rowing Club team of the Foreign League at the Rowing Club floor and the game will probably attract a big crowd.

The Rowing Club team is strong and fast and banks much on Nash in tonight's game. Liu, Lee and Tom Chang are expected to show up well for the Chinese.

Tonight's gone is to start at 8 o'clock.

Eddie Roush Is The Ball Hound Of The Majors

It's a wonder Eddie Roush has not long ago been nicknamed "the ball hound."

For if ever there was an outfielder who hounds the ball Roush is that gent.

Eddie gives chase to every ball hit to the outfield and to most of those hit to infielders.

He covers a wider range of territory than any other fielder in the National League. He backs up Neale and Duncan on almost every ball they catch and is also in position to back up the shortstop and second baseman in case balls get through them.

There's not an outfielder who takes more steps in a game than Roush. Unless they are hit right at him he runs after practically every other ball hit in the game.

American Tennis Players Make Cleanup In Tourney For Holding Of Davis Cup

Johnston And Tilden Win Both Singles And Doubles From Australasia Representatives, Brookes And Patterson

(Reuter's Service)

Auckland, Jan. 1.—The two final matches in the challenge round for the Davis Cup were played today. In both cases the Americans won, and they therefore defeated Australasia and become holders of the cup without losing a single rubber. The scores were:

W. M. Johnston beat Norman Brookes, 5-7, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

W. T. Tilden beat G. Patterson, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Auckland, N. Z., Dec. 31.—America has carried off the Davis Lawn Tennis Cup following up her victory in the singles yesterday by winning the doubles, the third match in the challenge round, today.

The score was, Messrs. Tilden and Johnston (America) beat Messrs. Brookes and Patterson (Australasia) 4-6, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4.

The match was played in perfect weather.

In the first set Patterson played in masterly style, while the Americans were below par. The challengers however improved in the second set, Johnston's volleying being superb Brookes was erratic.

In the third set Johnston missed nothing, attacking all the time. Brookes muddled some easy volleys while Patterson lapsed into his previous day's errors. He seemed to have lost all confidence even in his overhead shots and failed to smash even easy short tosses.

In the course of the fourth and last set, America gained an early lead which she always maintained. The first game was won by America on Patterson's service. In the final game Johnston ran to 40/15, then Brookes brought the score up to 30/40, after which Johnston ran out with his next service.

The Americans were unquestionably the superior pair. Johnston is entitled to most of the credit for the American victory. He excelled in his services and drives and beat Brookes in many volleying rallies by sheer merit.

The remaining singles do not affect the fate of the cup.

REVOLUTIONISTS BARRED FROM FRANCE, ORDER

German Communist's Arrival At Congress Explained By Minister

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Dec. 30.—In the Chamber of Deputies, a question as to how Clara Zetkin, the German Communist, reached the Socialist Congress at Tours elicited from the Minister of the Interior, M. Steeg, the fact that the French Embassy at Berlin had refused passports to four members of the Reichstag who desired to go to Tours.

The Government, he said, would not tolerate foreigners coming to France to preach civil war. Zetkin, however, had evaded the precautions taken at the frontier.

Her speech before the Congress, the minister remarked, indicated how Bolshevist propaganda was percolating through Berlin to outside nations.

SOCIALIST DENOUNCED

There was a tumultuous scene in the Chamber when the President called to order a Socialist who declared that the Socialists at Tours had done well to applaud Zetkin's speech. The President asserted "those are words to which Frenchmen refuse to listen.

Paris, Dec. 31.—The Chamber of Deputies, by 451 votes to 54, passed a motion approving the Minister of the Interior's statement in the Chamber yesterday, in which he explained the sudden appearance of Clara Zetkin, the German revolutionary, at the Tours Socialist Congress, and declared emphatically that the French Government was determined to oppose and suppress all revolutionary intrigues in France, and to clear the country of all undesirable foreign elements.

Paris, Jan. 1.—Following the French Socialist split at the Tours Congress on the burning question of adhesion to the Moscow Internationale, the three Anti-Communist groups, who opposed adhesion, have got together and formed a new Socialist party, to take the place of the old Socialist party, whose policy it will continue. This new party, which includes such prominent Socialists as M. M. Marcel Sembat, Doncour, Blum, Renaudel, Longuet Paul Faure, and Pressemane, has decided to hold a separate Congress at Tours, M. Pressemane being elected to preside.

SECRET NEGOTIATIONS

M. Paul Faure has been unanimously elected Secretary General of the new party, which has issued a manifesto of its aims. This states, in part:

"During the debates (at the Congress) we learned that a secret representative of the Executive Committee of Moscow was giving orders of what ought or ought not to be done. Finally, the Congress received from the Executive Committee of the Communist Internationale a telegram, bearing the signatures of Zinovieff and Lenin, which was an outrage upon the free and proud French proletariat.

"The majority at the Congress refused to spurn this outrage, and our duty was therefore clear. We have accomplished it with strong determination. We left the Congress hall. We let the Communists hold their own Congress. We have proceeded to continue the Congress of the Socialist Party elsewhere. These are the facts."

The manifesto concludes with an appeal to all workers to do their duty by remaining in or adhering to the Socialist Party.

FRENCH LOAN RESULTS

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 1.—M. Francois Marsal, the Minister of Finance, before the close of the session, informed the Chamber of the results of the latest loan up to date. The total subscriptions, he said, exceeded 27,000,000,000 francs, of which the exchange of war issues accounted for 12,500,000,000 francs, while the new subscriptions amounted to 14,500,000,000 francs, of which 5,400,000,0000 francs were in National Defence bonds and 9,100,000,000 in cash.

Obituary

MRS. W. S. JACKSON

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon for Mrs. W. S. Jackson, news of whose death brought deep regret to her many friends on New Year's day.

Mrs. Jackson had been suffering from an incurable illness for many years and since returning from Weihaiwei in October had been confined to her room in the family residence in Route de Say Zoong.

Mrs. Jackson was 60 years of age and had lived in Shanghai since she was four years old, when she came to China with her parents, the late Captain and Mrs. John P. Roberts, in a sailing vessel. Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in ivilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Children To Be Removed From Schools If Scheme Is Carried Out

(Reuter's Service)

Nagpur, Jan. 2.—The resolution of the Indian National Congress in regard to non-co-operation, without violence, which has been adopted, as already reported, urges the withdrawal of children from State schools, students from State institutions, and lawyers from practice. It appeals to merchants and traders gradually to boycott foreign trade.

It says the National Congress will appoint a committee of experts to formulate a scheme of economic boycott. It calls on the Members of Council to resign, and on soldiers and police to refuse to subordinate their creed and country to the fulfilment of orders, while government employes, pending a national call for their resignation, are asked to "help the national cause by greater kindness and stricter honesty in their dealings with the people." Finally, it urges all bodies to give their exclusive attention to the non-co-operation movement, "in order that self-government may be established in one year."

Exciting Election Expected In Wales

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 1.—The single by-election created by the Honors List, due to the elevation to the peerage of Mr. M. L. Vaughan Davies, the Coalition Liberal member for Cardiganshire, promises to lead to an exciting contest. A straight fight is anticipated between a Coalition Liberal and an Independent Liberal in this typical Welsh constituency.

Capt. Ernest Evens, one of the Prime Minister's private secretaries, will be the Coalitionist candidate and he will probably be opposed by Mr. W. Llewellyn Williams, who represented the Carmarthen District from 1906 to 1918. Both of them are Welsh orators. The election may decide the fate of Welsh Liberalism, which is already split.

Lecointe In His Car Beats Horse In Race

French Aviator Wins Test With English Journalist Staged Outside Paris

Paris, Nov. 27.—Saul Lecointe, winner of this year's James Gordon Bennett Cup and till recently the speed record holder of the world in an airplane, won another race this morning that was somewhat unique. It arose out of a discussion relative to the speed of a horse at full gallop and an automobile. Lecointe, who used to be a motor racer before he took up flying, backed his touring car against a half-bred horse owned by an Englishman, Gordon D. Knox, Paris correspondent of The London Morning Post, who was seeking the test.

The details were fixed that the horse should have a flying start over five hundred meters. The ground was selected in the Bois where the riding track runs alongside the road and this morning was fixed for the great event. A crowd of people, mostly journalists and airmen, turned out at an early hour to see the match, and betting was fairly evenly placed between Knox with his horse and Lecointe with his car.

Knox is a big fellow and the ground was heavy, but over the distance the match did not seem too unequal giving the horse a flying start. Knox took a couple of hundred yards to get up speed and as he drew level with the white car on the road the handkerchief fell and Lecointe flung open the clutch. His six-cylinder car seemed at once to jump to full speed and started after the flying horse. Half way he began to catch up and when the 350 meter mark was reached the mechanic beside him threw off his cap. The car had overtaken the horse. For a few strides Knox tried his best to keep level but Lecointe drew away an easy winner by 50 meters.

The time for the race was for the automobile 28 seconds and for the horse 34 1-5. Neither is a record and a better horse with a lighter jockey and easier ground might have made a better showing. Knox, however, declared his honor was satisfied and incidentally all bets went to profit the Ramsay memorial fund, of which he is secretary and which has for its object the exchange of students of chemistry in London and Paris universities.

ELECTRICAL APPARATUS FOR EVERY PURPOSE

This trade mark is the guarantee of dependable electrical equipment.

Electrifying the World

Three great problems were involved in electrifying the world.

First—The economical generation of electric energy.

Second—Its far transmission and wide distribution.

Third—Its practical application to use.

Prominent in the solving of these problems has been Westinghouse Electric, and to it is due much of the progress of the use of electricity, in power plants, central stations, railway and steamship lines, manufacturing industry and household convenience.

Westinghouse Electric harnessed the power of Niagara Falls.

It made practical the Parsons steam turbine for electric generation.

It perfected reduction gears by which the terrific velocity of the turbine generator could be safely yoked to the propeller shafts of steamships.

Westinghouse Electric developed the transformer by which alternating current came into general use, effecting wide and more economical distribution of electric energy.

It developed the induction motor which today does such a large share of the world's work.

Westinghouse—the Institution—stands a dominant figure at the parting of the ways between the age of steam and the age of electricity.

It Is Iron In The Blood That Makes Iron Muscles Like These--

Physicians Below Explain a Secret of the Great Power and Endurance of Athletes—Tell How Organic Iron—

Nuxated Iron Helps Build Rich, Red Blood That Gives Physical Strength and Energy To Go In and Win

To touch the arm of a strong, sturdy man — to feel the steel-like firmness of those muscular sinews —to think of the tremendous force and power that must lie behind such strength—these are thrills that come to the thin-blooded men and women whose own bodies are weak and physically unfit. It takes men of red-blooded force and power to hit the sledge-hammer blows that count — and whether you are a pile-driver or a bank president you cannot expect to win out against odds forever unless you are a man of iron—constantly able to strike—and strike hard.

"There are countless numbers of men today who at 40 are broken in health and steadily going downward to physical and mental decay simply because they are allowing worry, overwork, nervous strain, dissipation and occupational poisons to sap the iron from their blood and destroy its power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain," says Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City. "Yet these are thousands of such men who undergo a most remarkable transformation the moment they get plenty of the right kind of iron into their blood to give increased energy and endurance. Their imagined ills are forgotten, they gain physical poise and fitness, mental alertness and greater power to combat obstacles and withstand severe strains. To help build stronger, healthier men and women, better able physically to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe that physicians should at every opportunity prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

"Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men," says Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience formerly of the British Naval Medical Service. "Unless this strength-giving iron is obtained from the foods we eat, it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. For this purpose I always recommend organic iron — Nuxated Iron—which by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy into the whole system whether a person is young or old. In my opinion, Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood-builder any physician can prescribe."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance, which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for lack of iron.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

Poo Shong Hong, et al, Plaintiffs, vs. Consolidated Steel Corporation, Defendant.

Cause No. 1119, Decision Filed January 3, 1921.

SYLLABUS

1. Landlord and Tenant: Estoppel. Where the relation of lessor and lessee is established the latter is estopped from denying the former's title.

2. Id.: Id.: Exceptions. Lesse found not to have met the burden of showing that he was entitled to the benefit of the exception which applies where possession is not taken under the lease.

3. Id.: A Lease. A lease entered into by correspondence may be sufficient and a modification thereof cannot be affected by one of three lessors without the consent of the other.

4. Id.: Judgment for Rentals. Where the lessor's occupancy continues at the time of trial a judgment may be rendered for accrued rentals to the end of the current month.

Messrs. Fleming, Davies and Bryan, by Mr. Bryan, for plaintiffs.

Messrs. Jernigan, Fessenden and Rose, by Mr. Fessenden for defendant.

Lobingier, J.:

On May 5, 1920, the parties to this cause exchanged letters providing for the lease from plaintiffs to defendant of

"three large front rooms on the second floor of No. 22 Kiukiang Road (Shanghai) for a period of two years at a rental of Taels 600, including taxes, per month."

The correspondence contemplated a more formal instrument of lease and on May 14 plaintiffs enclosed such an instrument in a letter addressed to defendant's agent. Meanwhile, however, the latter had written plaintiffs stating that he was

"advised that it is very improbable that the people from whom you have leased will be able to carry out their agreement and under the circumstances I must ask to be relieved from my promise to take the space."

Whether this letter was brought to plaintiffs' attention does not appear but, it is not claimed that they ever agreed to a rescission of the contract, and it is undisputed that defendant's agent requested of one plaintiff a modification of the terms by the exclusion of one of the three rooms but was refused. Nevertheless the agent altered accordingly the instrument which had been executed by plaintiffs and sent for signature and returned it so altered to plaintiffs who refused to accept the modification and again sent it to defendant's agent. The latter had meanwhile entered into possession on May 27, and advertised one of the three rooms for rent in defendant's name.

The answer fails to deny plaintiff's averment that they

"have made repeated demands upon the defendant for the payment of the rent at Taels 600.00 per month for the months of June, July, August and September, making a total of Two Thousand and Four Hundred Taels (Tls. 2,400.00) Shanghai Sycee, but the said defendant has failed, refused and neglected to pay the same."

Defendant, however, alleges that

"plaintiff had no right, title, or interest in the three rooms in the second flat of the building situated at No. 22 Kiukiang Road, Shanghai, China, and no right, power or authority to enter into the agreement alleged."

To this plaintiff's counsel invokes the familiar principle that a lessee is estopped to question the lessor's title from which defendant claims exemption from this principle on the ground that it entered into possession independently of the lease or of plaintiffs and that it is not precluded "from denying that the relation of landlord and tenant ever existed between" the parties. But that relationship seems clearly to be recognised in the original correspondence of May 5, in defendant's letter of May 12 asking "to be relieved from my promise" and in that of May 28 announcing alterations in the instrument submitted for signature and signed by defendant's agent wherein said relation is expressly recited. Indeed we are unable to find that such relationship was ever questioned in writing until the filing on November 30 of defendant's answer which also seems to contain the first express question of plaintiffs' title. Moreover defendant's agent admits that he took possession on May 27 and in writing as he did to plaintiffs on the following day enclosing an instrument of lease in which plaintiffs are expressly named as lessors we think he shows that he was in possession by virtue of that relationship.

But defendant further alleges "that on or about the 28th day of May, 1920, the plaintiff Poo Shong Hong entered into an oral agreement with defendant to lease two of the aforesaid rooms to defendant and that defendant since the 28th day of May, 1920, has occupied said two rooms in pursuance of said oral agreement, and defendant further alleges that at the time of making said oral agreement as aforesaid, the said Poo Shong Hong agreed with defendant that defendant was in no way bound or liable to accept from said Poo Shong Hong or the said plaintiffs, a lease on the third room."

In support of this averment defendant's agent says that

"I think during the week beginning May 24, on what particular day I do not know, I was called to Mr. Tseng's office and in the presence of Mr. Tseng, Mr. Poo, Mr. Chen and Mr. Wu, an arrangement was made verbally between Mr. Poo and myself whereby we were to take possession of two rooms at the rental heretofore mentioned."

Neither Mr. Chen nor Mr. Wu were called as witnesses but Mr. Tseng says

"Mr. Poo promised he would give those two rooms to Mr. Robinson."

Mr. Poo however testifies

"I did not make that promise, but once I went to Dai Soong Cotton Mill and there interviewed Mr. Robinson and Mr. Tseng and Mr. Robinson asked me and told me that he wished to rent only two rooms out of the three, and asked me whether I am willing to accept his request, but I told him that I could not decide anything myself and I have to refer the matter back to Mr. Hermanns."

The latter declares that defendant's agent came to him on "Whit Monday" (the same week) asked for a limitation of the lease to two rooms and was refused. And if defendant made a separate oral agreement with Mr. Poo during that week why did its agent sign a lease on the following week with all the plaintiffs and address a letter to them asking their approval of alterations he had made? And if he had leased only two rooms why did he advertise the third to let in defendant's name?

Again there is no evidence that Mr. Poo possessed any authority to modify the contract of May to which his co-plaintiffs were parties and plaintiff Hermanns testifies that he did not consent to such modification. Finally it is at least doubtful whether such an agreement as defendant claims would amount to anything more than "a promise to give a lease" which would not satisfy the statute of frauds. We are unable, therefore, to find that defendant has brought itself within any of the exceptions to the doctrine of estoppel, above mentioned, and aside from the fact that defendant admits having occupied the premises for seven months without molestation from anyone claiming adversely to plaintiff and without paying rent to another, it is needless to inquire by what title plaintiffs held.

The capacity of one of them to sue was fully considered in ruling on the demurrer. It now appears that while he was repatriated he has returned with at least the tacit permission of the Chinese Government as evidenced by his registration at the Foreign Affairs Office of Kiangsu Province as well as at the Dutch Consulate, and also by the former's vise of his passport. The presumption of permission recognised in the previous order seems thus to be strengthened and the right to sue established by the authorities there cited.

The petition was filed on September 3 and claimed rentals for the months ending with September and "such other and further relief as to the court may seem meet." It is admitted that defendant is still in possession and it is consequently liable for the three additional months which have elapsed since the petition was filed. Under a statute available in this jurisdiction, damages for withholding property may be awarded "to the time of giving verdict" and such a statute has been held to authorise the allowance of rentals due at the time though not claimed in the pleadings. This in fact is accordance with the Federal doctrine regarding contracts in general, stated by the Supreme Court as follows:

"The recent tendency of judicial decisions in this country, in actions of contract, as well as in actions of tort, has been towards allowing entire damages to be recovered, once for all, in a single action, and thus avoiding the embarrassment and annoyance of repeated litigation."

It is accordingly considered and adjudged that plaintiffs have and recover from defendant the sum of Taels 4,200 together with their costs.

By the Court,
Charles S. Lobingier,
Judge.

An Ideal Method of Saving and Investing Money at One and the Same Time!

Health, Beauty And The Home

Keeping "Susan" Fit

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,
The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

LET us call the young daughter in the home "Susan." What should she be given to eat to keep her pretty, to keep her blooming, to develop her into healthy womanhood, and also to furnish her enough energy with which to play, to work, to dance, as all "Susans" do?

There was a time (so we learn from history and novels) when to be pallid and "ill" was the popular pose of the young girl. Recall the many heroines who "fell into a swoon" or whose appetite was "like a bird's." Why, "Elaine" and "Queechy" and "Amelia Sedley" spent their lives in one long, swooning illness! I have often wondered what they had to eat! Now those various periods when "feminine" and "fragile" were synonymous, and when it was thought nothing unusual for a woman to lie "ailing" on a couch for years, are gone forever. Instead we glory in young women who can swim, play tennis, "hike," manage a "bazar" or work in a business office for hours at a time without fainting once.

To be well is to be beautiful, and to be strong is the first step toward success of any kind. Outdoor exercise and right feeding—these are the two guardians of health. It is most important what Susan is fed in this period of fourteen to twenty, when she is no longer a child nor yet a woman. Neglect during these years is bound to react on her state of health as a mature woman or mother, and can never be remedied later.

Let us study this Susan of fourteen to twenty, whether she is your daughter or your neighbor's. In the first place, her body has not yet grown to its full height, but even when it has accomplished its full adult measure it will still have to be covered with the muscle and fat which will give it the contour and roundness of woman. Susan is generally in school studying very hard at geometry and physics, ambitiously pushing ahead with heavy school work. In addition, she may like to take part in a large number of "social" duties, of hops and class plays and meetings and the general outside distractions of school life. This again means using up a tremendous amount of nervous energy beyond what the body needs for its own use.

Still other daughters may have to work in office, factory or home, even as young as fourteen. Here again Susan will have to use energy to stand or do desk work, o whatever her employment may b in addition to the task of actually developing her own body to maturity. Therefore this is the vital point to emphasize—that the food supply of this period must be adequate not only to carry on school work and other interests but, most important, to actually develop Susan into an adult woman.

All too frequently there is not enough nourishment taken to fulfil both, and the result is anaemic, flat-chested girls, or the "nervous breakdown" so common in school years. Sometimes even Susan may need more food to grow on than she can assimilate.

Now having explained what changes are taking place with Susan, let us see what foods she must eat to supply the demands made on her. First, she will need a large quantity of protein, especially eggs, milk and the white meats to actually make body tissue. Again, she needs a fair share of fats, which are best taken at this time in the form of butter, olive and peanut oil, instead of in any gravies or fried foods which are more difficult of digestion. An immense quantity of starches will also be needed in this adolescent period to furnish the required amount of energy, but they also should be given in the most digestible form.

The reason for this care in the form of the food is that Susan's digestion during this period is likely to be weak and her appetite "finicky." Indeed, it may be necessary to coax her to eat the required amount of nourishment. Sometimes her lack of appetite takes the form of a "no-breakfast" idea, but she should be urged to take a breakfast entirely different from the regular family meal. At all times the meals should be dainty, even if it be an egg-nogg and crackers, for although she is growing as fast as her long-legged brother she hasn't always his "hearty" hunger. Another point is to vary the meals frequently—even a new kind of bread or a vegetable served a different way or a novel garnish will make ordinary food seem "different" and hence more appealing.

Another group of foods which Susan needs to indulge in generously is the watery vegetables and fruits. She will greatly need their valuable mineral salts to keep her blood pure during adolescent changes which often result in skin eruptions; also her body needs them for bone formation. Another reason why Susan should use plenty of watery fruits and the "bulk" vegetables is to avoid any danger of clogging and constipation. It is in these formative years that "habits" are formed, and one way to avoid the common and dangerous habit of constipation is by early establishing free bowel movements which will result in clear eyes and thinking apparatus.

The one group of foods in which Susan must not indulge is the sweets and the sugar-starch dishes. Unfortunately it is fudge and eclairs and French pastry that Susan just "loves!" Here is where a wise directing mother can be of the greatest value.

Did we ever see a man sit down to a lunch table and order a chocolate eclair and a cup of chocolate with whipped cream? Seldom. We would generally find Susan's brother ordering "ham and" or soup, or even such "coarse" foods as cabbage and dumplings. But Susan likes the rich salads with mayonnaise, the whipped cream and whole array of the pastry cook's art. Nerves are the result of mal—or under-nutrition.

One of the most important duties then for those with Susan's welfare at heart is to train her to right eating habits which will not lead to excess of sweets, pastry, soda, candies and concoctions generally. The plainer and more "man-like" the foods—chops, soups, green vegetables, raw fruits, etc.—the less likely she is to have the prevalent "headache." Also condiments, stimulant tea and coffee should not be a part of Susan's diet.

If Susan goes to school she should take a well-packed lunch from home, supplemented with a hot drink in a vacuum bottle, or choose one at school that will be as nourishing as possible though light to digest. Many schools are now seeing the wisdom of serving children the hot lunch at low cost; many business firms, too, are installing lunch rooms for the same reason, that they find that when Susan is rightly fed she is a more efficient worker with less tendency to "absence" and "days off."

To review, Susan needs a generous diet of all plain foods, with especial emphasis on proteins and starches; all food must be served in the most digestible ways; bulk vegetables and raw fruits are needed in plenty; no stimulants should be given, and but little sweets and complicated starch and sugar dishes or rich or highly seasoned foods. Everything should be done to build up right eating habits and lay the cornerstone for that glorious nerveless womanhood which is Susan's rightful inheritance.

Foot Blemishes

By Lina Cavalieri,
The Most Famous Living Beauty.

CORNS are not at all necessary. It is easy enough to get them, I know, but you need not keep them, unless you are simply too lazy to take the needful exertion to remove them.

Appearing usually upon the tops of the toes, corns are merely hardened portions of the skin caused by continued pressure from shoes. No Indian ever had a corn until he began wearing the white man's boots. Corns and bunions are the record of the fact that the shoe, as many wear it, is an instrument of torture. If the corns be new and not deep-seated, they can be removed easily enough by self-treatment.

Soak the feet fifteen to twenty minutes in warm water, softened by a few drops of violet ammonia or of benzoin. Bind a slice of lemon on the toes, tying it securely with a bandage of white muslin. If the corn responds naturally to the treatment it should be so loose after three or four applications that you can push it out by gentle friction with a towel. Never use your finger-nails in extracting a corn, no matter how loose it seems, or blood poisoning might result.

If, however, the case is more obstinate, then this, applied with a small camel's hair brush, should be quickly efficacious: Collodion, 4 grams; ether (65 per cent.), 2 grams; alcohol (95 per cent.), 1 gram; tincture of cannabis indica, ¼ gram; salicylic acid, ½ gram.

An even simpler and much less expensive remedy is the following: Collodion, 1 ounce; salicylic acid, 1 dram; fluid extract of cannis indica, 1 scruple. Apply several times a day until the corn is soft enough to be scraped away.

If the corns are of the "soft" variety that grow between the toes, absorbent cotton powdered with tannin or alum may be inserted between them at night, and sometimes even worn all day with the shoe.

Ring plasters to protect the corns from further irritation by the shoe have their friends and foes. I think it is much wiser to remove the pressure permanently by abandoning, at least for a time, the shoe that caused it.

Bunions, those twin-blemishes to corns, are enlarged and inflamed joints, usually of the first joint of the big toe. They are the greatest affliction to which suffering feet can be subjected. A new, amply broad pair of shoes with low heels is the best remedy. To assist this treatment, the joints may be painted three times daily with this simple but effective bunion lotion: Tincture of iodine, 2 drams; carbolic acid, 2 drams; glycerine, 2 drams.

At the first sign of an ingrowing toe-nail, each of two simple remedies may be used. The corner of the nail at the side where the toe is inflamed may be gently lifted and cotton thrust beneath it to relieve the pressure. Also, at the middle of the upper edge of the nail a tiny V may be cut. Nature in her extra efforts to heal this breach in the nail withdraws her forces from the irritation of the side of the toe.

I would like to remind you that no woman is ever pretty while her feet hurt her. A horrid male person has been ungallant enough to say of some of us that "the awkwardest thing in nature is a woman with a sore foot." That he didn't exaggerate we must admit.

Watch your feet carefully so that no one can have a chance to make any such remark about you. Is the skin between the toes cracked and sensitive? It is possible that this is an indication of a uric acid condition. See your physician at once and let him decide whether this is so, and have him advise you as to the treatment necessary to effect a cure. If the cracks between the toes are merely caused by the feet being over-heated, either by rubbers or by stiff leather shoes, spread zinc ointment over the cracked surfaces, or powder the sensitive places thickly with fuller's earth.

If the feet are bathed every night before retiring in tepid water into which a little borax or common table salt has been sprinkled, there is little likelihood of sensitive, swollen feet, or of that unwelcome variety of hardened, calloused portions on the feet, commonly referred to as corns.

As the evening foot bath is a preventative, so is it a cure for such painful conditions, unless they have reached an extreme stage. After carefully drying the feet—being careful to dry them thoroughly between the toes, so that no soft corns will form there—rub all the swollen, tender portions of the feet gently with witch-hazel or olive oil, or even plain cold cream.

Secrets of Beauty

Is there any way I can harden the flabby flesh on my neck and face?—MISS B.

Massage the face and throat daily with the following astringent cream, rubbing it well into the skin with the first two fingers of each hand:

Oil of sweet almonds	100 grams
White wax	50 grams
Tincture of benzoin	25 grams
Rosewater	25 grams
Pulverized tannin	15 grams

PLEASE advise me how I can rid myself of the unsightly light fuzzy hair under my chin and on the sides of my face.—S. B.

This superfluous hair is frequently a constant source of annoyance and even mortification, but there is no really effective remedy for this trouble except the use of the electric needle. If this is done by an expert, the operation should be quite painless and leave the skin restored to normal smoothness.

PLEASE tell me of some harmless method for removing blackheads.—DOTTY.

The most frequent causes of this distressing condition of the skin are lack of cleanliness, a faulty diet and absence of proper exercise. Eat only plain and wholesome foods; eschew candy and too many sweet desserts. Take plenty of fresh fruit, especially oranges, and live chiefly upon vegetables. Below is an excellent preparation which may be applied once a day, preferably at night, after first cleansing the skin thoroughly with warm water and a good soap:

Benzoinated lard	2 drams
Lanolin	2 drams
Precipitated sulphur	½ dram

KINDLY tell me of a simple way to remove a shine from the nose without powdering it all the time.—T. D.

Your sebaceous glands are in an over-active condition, consequently your skin needs the frequent application of an astringent lotion like this:

Rosewater	3 ounces
Almond milk (thick)	24 grams
Alum	30 grains

Then use only a pure rice powder, which will not harm the skin if removed at night with cold cream. Afterward cleanse the face with warm water and almond meal, or oatmeal, or even a mild soap if you prefer it.

WILL you kindly recommend a way to reduce? I weigh 167 pounds and am only eighteen. I get a great deal of exercise, but that does not seem to help —R. K.

You are very evidently suffering from over-assimilation. The logical thing for you to do is to change your diet completely; eliminate as far as possible all the carbonaceous foods, such as starches, sweets and fats and leave off white bread entirely. Eat more fresh fruits and vegetables, though bananas and potatoes must be omitted, and butter should be eaten sparingly. Also, it will help to take all the out-of-door exercises you can.

MY lips are so thick they worry me terribly. Is there anything I can do to reduce them?—DISCOURAGED.

The build of the mouth is such that it is extremely difficult to reduce the lips in any way except by a minor surgical operation or the application of astringent lotions. However, they may be massaged with the simple stroke movement, moving outward and upward instead of inward toward the nose. Rub gently, but with considerable pressure, using the first two fingers of each hand. The following astringent preparation will be found a valuable aid in this connection:

Pulverized tannin	1 gram
Alkanet chips	1 gram
Cold cream	1 ounce

WHAT will take a heavy coat of tan from my face and neck?—ETHEL.

As a preliminary to any treatment of the face and throat the skin must be scrubbed thoroughly with a good soap and warm water. Any soap will do, but I prefer a pure castile. The use of soap will have only a strictly whitening effect, so it will be found a valuable aid in the bleaching process. After the skin has been thoroughly rinsed and dried then use a simple bleach like this, which should be applied every night before retiring:

Rosewater	3 ounces
Glycerine	1 ounce
Tincture of benzoin	¼ ounce
Carbolic acid	10 drops

Every Woman a Beauty to Some One

It is agreed among a very large number of women that the one and cardinal attraction for man is the beauty of women. Certainly primitive man was allured by physical charm, and is still among uncivilized tribes, says Professor Walter M. Gallichan, in "The Psychology of Marriage." But the aesthetic standards of feminine loveliness vary all over the globe. The Hottentots admire fatness in women, and the Arabs find the greatest allurement in feminine slenderness.

Everywhere women shape themselves by artifice in the manner most approved by the males. If the civilized man insists on the charm of an abnormal waist, the most educated of civilized women are willing to endure the discomfort and the ill health resulting from tight-lacing. If the tottering and eccentric gait caused by the feminine high-heeled shoe is an attraction, women will willingly distort their feet.

The "Rubens type" of woman is perhaps the most admired by man. In all quarters of the world the development of the breasts and hips is deemed a sign of womanly beauty. No doubt the desire for a disparity of structure and form in the two sexes is deep and fundamental.

But carriage, as Ellis asserts, has a decided influence in selection, and an awkward gait detracts from womanly attractiveness. Plumpness of the figure is, however, not necessarily a handicap to graceful movement. Spanish women tend to stoutness, but they have the inward-curved spine, which lends a statuesque bearing and nimbleness in active motion.

So marked is the masculine desire for the generous figure in woman that there have been periods when women wore pads to accentuate the abdominal region. The crinoline was probably designed by a shrewd woman in order to heighten the suggestion of embonpoint.

There are, no doubt, exceptions to this predilection for fullness of form in women. The poets often expatiate upon the beauty of the willowy figure, the grace of a lithe body, the loveliness of the Psyche model, the panther-like movements of the slimly built woman, and the charm of a reed-like form. Slimness is very frequently associated with charm in woman.

Ellis notes a masculine preference for blondes as widespread. Even in Italy, where dark or olive complexions are a racial characteristic, the fair woman is preferred. Nevertheless, most of the great English belles have not been very fair.

Leonardo da Vinci observed that the like rather than the unlike are attracted to one another, and researches since his day demonstrate that similarity is a very great factor in love-choice, though not the only one.

It is certain that the physical appeal is never quite absent in the choice of a lover among both men and women, and that it is sometimes paramount. But many men choose plain, even ill-favored women, which proves that external charm is not the sole allurement.

Useful Hints for Busy Housewives

Finding a Needle.

IF you happen to lose a needle when sewing, take a magnet and run it over the rug or carpet where the needle has disappeared.

Ironing Lace.

AFTER washing yellow lace dip it in milk before ironing. A warm iron should never come in contact with the lace, so to secure perfect results put tissue paper over it before pressing.

A Makeshift Bodkin.

SHOULD your bodkin become misplaced, fasten a small safety pin in the end of the ribbon and it will serve almost as well.

Red Ink Stains.

TO remove red ink stains from table linen spread freshly made mustard over them and leave on about half an hour. When sponged off all traces of the ink will have disappeared.

Washing China.

HOT water will not hurt the finest decorated china, but the use of strong soaps and powders should be avoided.

For Window Shades.

PROCURE an extra long rubber band and stretch across the window on two hooks to keep the shades from blowing in when the screens are in and the shades pulled down.

For Sunday Night Supper

By Mary Lee Swann,
The Well-Known Writer and Lecturer on Cooking.

Ragout of Veal.

CUT cold roast veal into small cubes. Measure, and to 1 pint veal cubes add 1½ cups brown sauce, seasoned with a few drops of onion juice, a dash of cayenne and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Eggs Italian Style.

MELT 2 tablespoons butter and add ½ cup finely sliced mushrooms. Cook until mushrooms are tender. Add 1 cup milk and ½ cup cooked spaghetti or noodles and heat gradually. Then add 5 beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. A little finely chopped parsley may be added just before serving. To be at their best the eggs should be cooked slowly.

Ham and Crumb Timbales.

COOK 1½ cups dried bread crumbs with 1¼ cups milk. When thick and pasty add 2 cups finely minced ham, a scant teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon grated onion and a dash of pepper. Add 2 well-beaten egg yolks. Mix well and fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into small buttered or greased timbale molds or custard cups, place in pan of hot water and cook in a moderate oven about ½ hour. Serve with white sauce to which green peas have been added.

Creamed Chicken.

CUT cold chicken into small cubes. To 2 cups of chicken allow 2 cups thick white sauce. Heat and season to taste with salt and paprika. About 1-10 teaspoon celery salt may be added. Serve hot on rounds of toast, baking powder biscuit or with a border of well-seasoned riced potatoes. Finely chopped parsley is sometimes sprinkled over the chicken just before serving. Creamed chicken may be varied by adding ¼ cup sliced mushrooms to 2 cups of chicken.

Cheese Fondue.

MIX and sift 1 tablespoon flour with 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon mustard and a few grains of paprika. Stir into 2 tablespoons melted butter and cook until frothy, stirring constantly. Add ¾ cup milk and continue stirring until thick and creamy. Add ½ cup stale bread crumbs and ¼ pound thinly sliced cheese. Cook over hot water until cheese is melted. Add 3 well-beaten eggs and fold carefully into hot mixture. Serve immediately.

Cheese Soup.

PEEL, slice and fry 5 or 6 onions with ¼ cup butter and ¼ pound finely minced ham. Add ½ pound bread crumbs, 1½ quarts good white stock, a tiny blade of mace and salt and pepper to taste. Cook about 30 minutes, add ¼ pound grated Parmesan cheese and 2 egg yolks. Press through sieve and serve hot.

Welsh Rarebit.

MELT 1 tablespoon butter, add ½ pound thinly sliced cheese and ¼ teaspoon salt and a dash of paprika. Stir constantly until cheese is melted. Beat 2 egg yolks, add ½ cup rich milk or cream and stir into the hot cheese. Cook very slowly until smooth and creamy. Serve on slices of bread toasted on one side. Pour the rarebit on the untoasted side.

Spanish Omelet.

SEPARATE 6 eggs. Beat yolks until light, add 1 teaspoon salt and a few grains of paprika and ½ tablespoon flour diluted with ¼ tablespoon milk. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a buttered omelet pan and cook until firm. When ready to serve the omelet place it on a serving dish and before folding it pour the following sauce between sections. For sauce fry in a little butter the following ingredients: 1 minced onion, 1 finely chopped green pepper, 3 or 4 mushrooms, 1 small bay leaf, a tiny sprig of parsley, 1 tablespoon finely minced ham and 1 thinly sliced lamb kidney. Then add 2 or 3 peeled tomatoes and 1 cup of good consomme. Cook about ½ hour.

Oysters American Style.

WASH and pick over 1 pint oysters; parboil or steam until tender. Drain, reserving liquid. Add cold water to make 1 cup and strain through double cheesecloth. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 1 teaspoon finely chopped shallot, 1 tablespoon finely chopped red pepper and cook until tender. Add 2 tablespoons sifted flour and stir well. Add oyster liquid, stirring constantly. Add 1 teaspoon salt, a dash of paprika, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons mild vinegar, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and ½ teaspoon beef extract. Mix well and add oysters. Place 3 or 4 oysters on small rounds of bread, toasted and buttered on one side. Pour sauce over oysters and garnish with thin slices of pickled gherkins.

the number of tramway passengers increased .. 909 percent the number of tramcars, trailers and railless electric cars increased ..... 180 percent the miles of electric traction route (rail and railless) increased ..... 7 percent

The rail system was regarded as unsuitable for many Shanghai streets not provided with Tramways but requiring electric traction services; and the Company did its utmost to develop a type of railless electric vehicle suitable for the conditions. When the preliminery railless route proved successful, the Company submitted a comprehensive scheme of railless extensions and has been pressing, since March 1917, for sanction to carry out such extensions and provide greatly augmented cheap traction facilities.

Stocks Crumbling On N.Y. Exchange

Widespread Business Depression Indicated By Appalling Slumps In Shares

New York, November 25.—Reflecting widespread business depression, stocks are crumbling at an appalling rate. Losses of from $5 to $10 per day on shares are common, while many items have experienced drops of from $30 to $100 per share.

No bids at all are being made for many stocks, but forced liquidations cause more than a million shares to change hands in a day.

Railroad shares show resistance, but all industrials are weak. The shares of the American Woolen Mills Company, which closed its mills recently because the public refused to buy high priced clothing, dropped a hundred dollars.

Many concerns have been forced to borrow millions to carry enormous inventories. Money is ranging between 8 and 10 percent. Manufactured goods are being sacrificed to relieve the situation. Banks, prepared for a storm, predict prosperity for next year.—(Japan Advertiser).

Share Market

Messrs. J. P. Bisset and Company write as follows in their share report for week ending December 31, 1920.

The Share market has been quiet since the resumption of business on Tuesday last following the Xmas Holidays, and the few transactions recorded below call for no special comment. Business opened with a fair demand for New Engineerings and Shanghai Docks, which improved to Tls. 25½ and Tls. 123½ respectively, but the market closed today with sellers of both slightly below these rates. Local Cottons remain firm, with buyers at present low quotations and very few sellers. Rubbers continue neglected on the whole.

Geddes Urges Limit On Trade Rivalry

Bars Competition Organised By Government And Supported By Political Action

Minneapolis, Nov. 5.—America and Great Britain must avoid national trade competition "organised by Government and supported by political action," Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambasador to the United States, declared today in an address at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon here.

If the United States or Great Britain, he said, were to begin to organise areas of exclusive economic adventure there "would inevitably come a clash of interests that would at least strain the friendly relations between the countries."

Sir Auckland denied statements appearing in American newspapers that American ships had been placed at a disadvantage with British ships by British Government action. He declared, however, not "in any sense as a threat, however veiled, but as a matter of interest," that if the British Empire should adopt a law precisely similar to the American law limiting coastwise traffic to ships flying its own flag "there would be some far-reaching derangements in the business of non-British shipping."

"We are not thinking at present of adopting any such law," he added, "for our trade policy is based on the policy of 'fair trade and equal opportunity.'"

Speaking not only as the Ambassador of England but as the representative of all the British dominions and colonies, "of one-quarter of the human race," Sir Auckland said he had no hesitation in asserting that he misrepresented no opinion of importance when he declared it was the wish of all the British people to live in peace and amity with the United States and "with all the nations of the earth."

"I sometimes read in your newspapers," he said, "of these subtle, devilish schemes which the British Government is preparing with the object of preventing your trade expansion. I have been a member of the British Cabinet, I have been the Minister of the Crown responsible for the trade policy and activities of the Government, and I assure you formally and without reservation that the principle which underlies British trade policy is expressed in the five words: 'Fair trade and equal opportunity.'

"If we continue to trust one another, if we know as States we can trust one another, not to attempt to steal marches each upon the other, then I believe that the competition of our respective traders will add to and not subtract from the understanding of the one nation by the other.

"Let me declare without any possibility of misunderstanding, the British Government will welcome the co-operation of the Government of the United States in dealing with the problems of the East and the West, and that so far as trade is concerned it stands today by its old policy of fair trade and equal opportunity."

Stinnes, Teuton Midas, Seriously Ill

The Coal King's Physicians Restrict Him To A Diet Of Boiled Eggs

Berlin, Nov. 7.—The health of Hugo Stinnes, the richest man in Germany, is giving his physicians very serious cause for anxiety. For some time he has been suffering from an exceedingly stubborn internal complaint which within the past few weeks has greatly altered his appearance and reduced his strength. He still attends to business, but has been put on a diet which consists of little more than boiled eggs. He continues to entertain numerous guests at one of the chief Berlin hotels, and at such meals all his friends partake of the simple fare which is prescribed for him, in order, the doctors insists, that he may not feel unnecessarily conscious of his infirmity.

It is only within the past few months that Herr Stinnes has become a notable figure on the world's stage. His fight against the coal agreement at the Spa conference brought him definitely into the European limelight. He is Germany's coal king, owning fifteen groups of coal mines and half a dozen coal distributing concerns.

But, beyond that, he was Germany's biggest war profiteer. In 1914 his fortune amounted to 30,000,000 marks, and he was a long way from being the richest person in the Fatherland. This distinction at that time was held by Frau Bertha Krupp, who possessed 250,000,000 marks more than anybody else in the country. The second richest person was August Thyssen, whom Stinnes quickly overtook. Finally he ousted Frau Krupp from the place which she had held for so long.

His ambition is not money, however, but power, and he is the controlling personality in the German People's Party, one of the three parties forming the present Coalition Government.

THE WISE MOTHER
AND BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

The ills of children come swiftly, and too often before a doctor can be called in or medicine obtained the little one is beyond aid.

The wise mother will always safeguard her little one by keeping Baby's Own Tablets the Canadian children's remedy, in the home. This medicine always does good—it cannot do harm as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs—and is confidently recommended as a remedy for teething troubles, constipation, diarrhoea, colic, indigestion, simple fever and worms.

Mrs. Napoleon Lambert, of St. Ignace, Quebec, writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets are an excellent medicine for childhood ailments and I am well pleased with them."

DOCTORS INVADE SPAIN

Native Physicians Appeal To Government To Bar Foreign Competitors

Madrid, Nov. 7.—The physicians and surgeons of Spain are greatly perturbed over the recent invasion of their country by foreign practitioners, more especially Austrians, who have been unable to find sufficient means for existence in their own country. In consequence, at a meeting of the physicians' association here it was decided to appeal to the Government to make regulations under which foreign practitioners would have to acquire a medical degree in Spain before being allowed to practice.

Further steps are under consideration by the association relating to the reorganisation of the Spanish medical personnel with a view to bringing all its branches under the same governmental authority. Now private physicians are under the authority of the Ministry of the Interior, military doctors under the Ministry of War and naval doctors under the Ministry of Marine.

Efforts also are being made to organise a national system of hygiene to replace the present organisation, existing under the authority of the Governments of the various provinces, each province having a different plan.

Incorporate The American Community: A Scheme For Political Organisation of Americans In China

(Editor's Note: We wish to call special attention to the importance of the following article. Mr. Fleming, the writer of it, has been a resident of Shanghai for the last fourteen years. Twice he has been President of the American Association of China and he is at present a member of the Legal Committee of the American Chamber of Commerce. He has also served the Far Eastern Bar Association as Vice-President, Judge Lobingier having been President of it from its inception. Before coming to Shanghai Mr. Fleming was Deputy Attorney General of the Hawaiian Islands. The plan he here proposes is the fruit of much thought devoted to the problems arising from the steady growth both in numbers and influence of the American communities in China. We hope that our readers will give it careful consideration and let us know what they think about it.)

BY WILLIAM S. FLEMING

THE American Community in Shanghai has expanded from a few earnest missionaries and a handful of hardy traders to a large and vigorous group of permanent residents, comparable in numbers, financial resources, volume of business transacted, public welfare work, social organisations and in its imperative demands for schools, hospitals, charitable and relief work, with many a well organised city at home.

The personnel of the Community, so far as education, training and general ability for self-management and government are concerned, outranks any of similar numbers in the United States. This is due to the fact that for the most part Americans residing in the Far East are here only because of special qualifications for carrying on the enterprises or propaganda of the various commercial, educational and religious callings in which they are engaged. The labor union and the indigent immigrant are not problems with which we have to deal, and the tramp, beach-comber and anarchist are only birds of passage.

With the growth of a community so composed, it is natural that from time to time efforts should be made towards local management and self control in order to meet and deal with current problems affecting the community as a whole and to provide for its general welfare. These efforts in the past have resulted in the formation in succession of the American Association of China, the American Relief Society, the American Woman's Club, the American Chamber of Commerce, the University Club, the Bar Association, the American Club, the Columbia Country Club, the Red Cross Society, and also numerous organisations in the nature of Civic Leagues, Saturday Clubs, Rotary Clubs and others. All these have been promoted through good motives, a desire either to foster and stimulate business, to improve our relations with the Chinese and other nationals, to better our social and community life, or to engage in philanthropic work. Each in its own sphere has been in a greater or less degree effective in meeting the hopes and aspirations of its founders.

While all the organisations referred to have at times at least been necessary as administrative agencies in the affairs of the Community, it must be conceded at once that the Community is not as yet completely organised, and that much remains to be desired. As it is now, many of the associations are working at cross purposes. All will agree that a united community effort in any direction is more likely to attain speedy and satisfactory results than through a division of forces, yet a slight consideration of the matter will show that the latter is the case with us.

When it becomes necessary to establish an American School, for instance, no effective means of attaining this object are at hand. A committee is loosely formed from representatives of various Community organisations and with such public spirited citizens as are willing to devote their time and services to the subject.

The first consideration is the matter of finance, and in order to secure this appeals are made for contributions through every conceivable source. The assistance of other associations is requested and their members are asked for generous subscriptions. All possible means by which the object may be attained through voluntary action are resorted to. Yet a satisfactory result is not obtained. The burden falls not necessarily upon those best able to bear it but upon those with the largest hearts and the loosest purse strings.

The effort put forward is a good one. It is pushed by the most public spirited and well meaning members of the Community. It is intended to meet an absolute want and to establish and maintain what to every American is almost as dear to his heart as his patriotism—the education of our youth. It is not right that the burden of this should fall upon a few. It is right that the Community as a whole should take the responsibility. Yet as matters stand, the school question is far from being one to which the Community has given its unanimous and wholehearted support or in which the financial burden has been equally distributed. We are not here for a day or a year. This matter is pressing now and we must also look far into the future.

The school question is merely one of the problems with which the American Community is faced. Of others I need only mention the care of the sick and the indigent. No satisfactory and effective method of dealing with these has as yet been devised. It is true we have an American Relief Society, supported by voluntary contributions, and it has within the limits of its resources done satisfactory work, but here again the burden falls upon a few and the Community as a whole, being responsible, has not as a body borne it.

As the Community continues to grow and its activities increase problems of this character will increase also, become more complex and the necessity of better methods of dealing with them will become more imperative.

Already some of the American organisations which in the easy-going past were active and useful have fallen into decay. The American Association of China, probably the parent of all our Community organisations, has lost its vigor and become senile. Many of its functions have been quietly absorbed by other more active agencies, among which I may only mention the American Chamber of Commerce. The Association's progress has been impeded by a number of perennial office holders and so weak and impotent has it become that at the last annual meeting the total attendance was only ten.

We are at a point in our Community life when serious minded Americans must consider better methods of dealing with the problems before us than have as yet been devised. I have given this matter considerable thought of late, inspired by the belief that the American School Campaign had not met with the support it deserves and that our efforts in this and in other matters of a public nature must often prove abortive unless we are better equipped to deal with them.

I am therefore going to propose a plan which I believe if given serious consideration and attention will prove the means of putting us on a sounder basis for operation, will solve many of our difficulties and tend to promote the welfare and happiness of the whole Community; and it need not necessarily affect the existence or the activities of the present voluntary associations which may all be preserved intact and as useful accessories.

Every community of our size within the borders of the United States is incorporated and holds a charter either by direct act of the legislature of its State or through general laws or enabling acts adopted by the various States for the purpose of encouraging their formation.

This is what we should have for Americans in China; and in the formation and administration of such corporations there should in no way be a conflict with the jurisdiction and authority of our own officials, the Municipal Councils of the Settlements or the Chinese Government, because, if incorporated, this and other American Communities in China would only supplement the work of the other organised and existing sources of administration and would only operate to supply a few things which we require and which they cannot give. They may be made active agents in support of our officials and the other governing bodies.

It is my suggestion that Congress be petitioned for a general law applying to Americans in China under which they may organise themselves in this way and I believe that if a united effort of the American Communities here is put forward for this purpose we may in confidence expect that we will be justly dealt with.

The law should in a general way permit the organisation of public corporations by the American residents of this country for the purpose of doing such things as will tend to promote our welfare and happiness, such as the establishment of school and hospitals, the care of the sick and indigent, to arrange for the observance of national holidays, to license trades and professions, to regulate certain occupations, and to exercise a measure of what is known among lawyers as police power, provided of course that this should not conflict with our own laws or such of the laws and regulations of the Chinese Government or the existing Municipalities as all foreigners are required to observe.

The corporations should be given authority to elect Community Councils, Commissioners, Boards of Trustees, or other governing bodies, by whatever name they may be called. These bodies should be empowered to appoint sub-committees, officers and agents, to levy and collect taxes in such method and either per capita, upon property or upon incomes, according to the best judgment of Congress or according to whatever discretion may be given them in the enabling act.

The Communities as corporations should have authority to make contracts, to buy, sell and encumber the real and personal property required in their administration, to borrow money and to issue bonds and debentures secured by mortgage of any of their properties or upon their own credit.

They should also have authority to make rules of procedure for their elections and general meetings and for the management of their governing boards. The power also should be given to adopt ordinances or regulations binding on the Communities and the individuals composing them and subject to enforcement through the medium of our existing judicial and administrative officers.

The members of the governing board should be selected by popular vote and should exercise powers much the same as under Commission Government at home. All of the Americans both male and female, over the age of twenty-one and residents of not less than one year should be entitled to vote.

In discussing the plan I have for the most part referred to Shanghai but I do this merely because we have here a concrete case with the facts and the necessities before us.

It would, however, be best to secure a general law under which the American residents of each Consular District in China could voluntarily incorporate for the special purposes required but in the same general way as similar local groups may do in the States. This should be the means of bringing into each officially organised community not only the residents of the larger treaty ports in each Consular District but with them as well those residing at interior points. For practical purposes it would not then be exclusive but inclusive and complete.

The machinery required to administer such public corporations would not be extensive or expensive, for we need not necessarily have either police or public works forces. A paid secretary would be necessary and in the larger centers possibly an assistant or two. The scheme would be operated much the same as under commission government at home. The generosity that has always been displayed by most of our fellow citizens in voluntarily serving on public welfare boards and committees without other compensation that the conviction that they were rendering a public service would assure us without cost the best that we have among us in experience, talent and noble intent.

A plan such as this, if actively promoted and consummated, would afford the greatest opportunity we have ever had to put ourselves upon a practical basis for operation and to present our petitions to Congress for further Legislation affecting us and our trade in China.

We know that the American Chamber of Commerce and other organisations are now endeavoring to secure from Congress an act authorising the incorporation of companies engaged in foreign trade and intended primarily to relieve them so far as their foreign business is concerned from the burden of the Income Tax Legislation. We already have the means for the incorporation of companies locally in the provisions of the Alaska Code. The United States Court for China has held that these are available for Americans residing here and since this decision was rendered a large number of private corporations have already been formed.

The only feature of the act which is now before Congress from which we have anything to gain lies in the income tax provision. It is not assured that the act will pass as a whole and unless it passes with the income tax clause intact it will be of no particular value to us here despite the magnitude of the effort which has been made in its support. Further than this, it is possible that before the act ever becomes a law the general Income Tax Law itself will be so amended that the Excess Profits Tax, the one which has proven so burdensome, may be repealed entirely, and then corporations engaged in foreign trade as well as all others will not be worried with it longer. It may also be noted that there is no just reason why a discrimination should be made in favor of corporations engaged in foreign trade as against the firm and the individual similarly situated.

There is, however, a safer avenue of approach to Congress with the prayer that the American Communities in China be relieved of burdensome taxation of this character and this is to put before them a scheme which involves the taxation of ourselves by ourselves in order to provide for these communities the things which we could get at home but do not get here. This plan is the one which I have just proposed, viz: that we get a law from Congress authorising incorporating our Communities in China; that we be authorised to tax ourselves for the purposes stated and that in exchange for the obligations which we undertake in this respect we be relieved from national income tax legislation.

A well meant proposal such as this, proving that we do not wish to avoid the burdens which all Americans must bear, but that we desire to impose the taxes ourselves and to assume the responsibility of administering the funds, is, I am sure, one that will appeal to the spirit, pride and patriotism of our own fellow citizens at home, because local self government has always been and always will be among the obligations and the blessings of American citizenship. In this respect so far as government and so far as taxation are concerned we would be asking Congress to grant no more than it has already conceded to American citizens residing in the Philippine Islands and in Porto Rico. They are not burdened with national Income Tax Legislation.

If this plan is concurred in by our Communities, given their whole hearted support, and receives the approval of Congress, the solution of the school problem and many others of similar character which have engaged the thoughtful attention and inspired the best efforts of some of our most highly respected citizens will be easy, effective and absolute. The drafting of a bill for Congress covering the plan suggested should not be a difficult matter.

In conclusion I feel that I may with confidence claim that my proposals are not visionary, but constitute a serious attempt at a practical solution of growing problems, and that, sooner or later, as long as extraterritorial rights are held in China, something of this character, will be found not only useful but imperative. Shall we, my fellow citizens, remain wallowing where we are in the bog or shall we arise and advance?

this is the time for me to hand a rose to "Domino" for the Christmas story that appeared in his column. It seemed to me to be really worthy of the author whose quotation was at the head of the column.

CUMSHAWS

Pity the lot of the postmaster. I have seen P. M. Ed. Everett getting more silvery about the head daily during the last couple of weeks. Some folk have asked him why their letters did not arrived in time for Xmas. Others would know why letters had not arrived at all. There are still others who told him that they received presents which were not what they expected. And that reminds me:

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

She needed pots and a new floor broom,
And window shades for the children's room;
Her sheets were down to a threadbare three
And her tablecloths were a sight to see.
She wanted scarfs and a towel rack
And a good, plain useful dressing sack,
Some kitchen spoons and a box for bread,
A pair of scissors and some sewing thread
She hoped some practical friend would stop
And figure out that she's want a mop
Or a bathroom rug or a lacquered tray,
Or a few plain plates for every day.
She hoped and hoped and she wished a lot
But these, of course, were the things she got

* * *

A cut-glass vase and a bonbonniere
A china thing for receiving hair.
Some oyster forks, a manicure set,
A chafing dish and a cellaret,
A boudoir cap and a drawn-work mat
And a sterling this and a sterling that.
A gilt-edged book of a lofty theme
And fancy bags till she longed to scream;
Some curling tongs and a powder puff
And a bunch of other useless stuff.
But though she inwardly raged she wrote
To all her friends the self same note,
And said to each of the blamed fool host—
"Just how did you guess what I needed most?"

To Be A Homespun Duchess

(From Washington Correspondence Of The Philadelphia Public Ledger)

"The Duchess" is President-elect Harding's favorite name for his wife. He called her by it for years, and sometimes he speaks of Mrs. Harding in the third person by that title. People should not jump to the conclusion that the new first lady of the land is addicted to the haughty manners or mannerisms that might be associated with her pet name. She is affability and amiability personified. If Mrs. Harding can have her way, the White House, under the new regime, is very likely to revert to the old-time era of homespun hospitality traditionally associated with it.

The Unknown Warrior: A Dream

BY MAUDE ANNESLEY
(Daily Mail, Nov. 11)

I had asked Grace, Mrs. Bell, and the Colonel to come to my balcony. I can see far along the road, almost as far as Victoria Station, and I thought it right that I should ask them to see with me the great home-coming of the Warrior. These friends, like myself, had had the great torture of the "Missing" notices.

As I greeted them in the early morning mist I could feel the thought in every mind (as it was in my own)—"The Unknown may be my Warrior." Just that thought, I knew, was secreted in many thousand hearts this day.

We took up our positions silently on the balcony and watched the crowds. We looked far down the road as we heard the distant bands and there, stretching into the distance, was a long khaki and blue procession. Through my glasses I could see the dear flag on the gun-carriage and the distinguished bearers around it.

"I thought," I whispered unsteadily, "that there were to be about a thousand soldiers and sailors; there are far more than that."

"Far, far more," said the Colonel gruffly; "I don't understand it."

By and by as they came nearer, one of us remarked on the stained uniforms.

"They look like the men did when they used to come home on leave," said Grace, wiping her eyes.

"And look!" cried Mrs. Bell, "the officers are all mixed up with the men."

"All the regiments are muddled up," frowned the soldier. "See, there are kilts, and flying men, and sailors, and khaki."

The heterogeneous mass was near us now, yet still the gun-carriage was far behind.

Suddenly I saw one I knew, and my heart seemed to stop beating for some moments. I dropped my glasses, leaned far over the stone railing, and held out my arms. He nodded and smiled up at me. I put out my hand to Grace. "The boy," I gasped, "do you see? Do you see?"

But Grace was leaning down too, so were the Colonel and Mrs. Bell, a wonderful radiance on their faces.

I looked down again. There, walking in that wondrous procession were those dear ones belonging to my friends who had gone, as we thought for ever, from this world. They all smiled and nodded up at the group, as though they would say, "Wait a little while till this is over, then we will come to you. We are taking him to his King."

As I looked, the happy tears rolling down my face, I suddenly realised that the crowds lining the pavements were no longer still. Here and there were arms held out by women with ecstatic faces, and the men to whom they held out these loving, longing hands were smiling happily.

Far, far in the distance I could see the marching men and those arms in the crowd stretching out to them.

The moving feet rang out some words as they passed. What was it they were trying to say? Tramp, Tramp, tramp, tramp—what was it?

Ah! suddenly it became very plain:

"THERE ARE NO DEAD."

* * *

I opened my eyes and felt the pillow wet beneath my face. There, by my side, showing in the dim illumination of the night-light, was the photograph of The Boy. But in the silence of the night I seemed still to hear the tramp of those many, many feet, and they rang out their message clearly:

"THERE ARE NO DEAD."

Hello

(From The Three Partners)

With a clamp on her head like a cage for her hair,
She sits all day on a stiff little chair
And she answers the calls that come over the wire,
From people of patience and people of ire;
And "Number?" she queries of noble or churl—
A wonderful voice has the telephone girl.
She has to be pleasant, and hustling and keen.
With a temper unruffled and ever serene,
There are forty-five things she must think of at once,
Or someone, impatient, will call her a dunce,
Since it seems a general custom to hurl
The blame for your grouch on the telephone girl.
It's wearisome work on the nerves and the brain,
Continual hurry, continual strain,
And of course she gets tired—as other folks do—
And needs to be thoughtfully treated by you;
So think of her doing her best mid the whirl,
And try to be white to the telephone girl.

Bobbie And His Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

We had to write a essay on Envy for our skool teacher & I asked Pa to help me the saim what I always do.

I am afrade you are gitting so you leen too much on yure father, Bobbie, sed Ma. Try to rite & think moar for yureself.

The child is lerning to think for hisself wen he gits me to help him, sed Pa, & he will have moar noabler thoughts after he has been around this old sport for an eevning, sed Pa to Ma.

Vary well, sed Ma, but my deer old father nevver rote essays for us wen we was going to skool.

It is a cinch he dident, sed Pa, that old sport cuddent rite anything but Yure letter receeved & I take my pen in hand to anser saim.

My father was a man of much mentil Grasp, sed Ma.

He had Grasp enuff, sed Pa, but not mentil. He had finanshul grasp, tho, sed Pa, he cud hug a dollar titer than a Tango Teecher hugging a new pupil, sed Pa. He novver let loose till the nerves in his fingers went to sleep sed Pa.

That isent helping me rite a essay on Envy, I sed to Pa.

Well, sed Pa, Envy is a Prime-evil trate, sed Pa, wich was in the erliest men on this here Plannit. Eve envied Adam beekaus he was boss, sed Pa, & Cain envied Abel bekaus he cud raise better watermellins than Cain, Pa sed, so he soked Abel on the bean with a bean pole, sed Pa, & that was the end of the Nineth Innings for Kid Abel, sed Pa.

& rite down thru the yeers, Pa sed, to this vary day, Envy has raised her hydrant hed, sed Pa & spoiled happy-ness & made un-happiness, Pa sed. Yure mother envies me beekaus I am boss of this house, & you envy yure mother beekaus she is boss of me, sed Pa. Thus do men go thru life, sed Pa, each of us wishing that we cud be sumbody else.

Deer me, sed Ma, is it possibul that you evver wanted to be anybody but yure grand self? sed Ma.

Oh, yes indeed, sed Pa, I have offen wished I cud be sum grate leeder. Of course you under-stand, sed Pa, that all I wanted was to have thare chanst with my own person-Allity.

I see, sed Ma, you dident want to be them, you wanted to be yureself & sit back & have all the Fame wich thay worked for & erned. That is the genu-ine Envy for you, Bobbie, sed Ma, the Envy of Laziness, wich is the father of most Envy after all. I doant Envy anybody, sed Ma, beekaus I havent the time to envy them.

Then the way not to Envy peepul is to keep busy, isent it? I sed to Ma.

Yes, Bobbie, sed Ma, put that in yure essay.

I guess Ma cud help me rite essays better than Pa cud, but then Pa wud Envy Ma & I wud Envy both of them. I doant envy anybody excep the man on the corner wich runs the Ice Creem Stoar.

SCOTT'S Emulsion

Mrs. Catt Explains

(From The Worcester Telegram)

Carrie Chapman Catt tells the League of Women Voters how it was that Senator Wadsworth, slated for slaughter by the National Woman Suffrage Association, was re-elected. Democratic voters were persuaded by the Republicans to swap votes for him in return for votes given Al Smith for governor. From 200,000 to 300,000 votes were changed in this way, says Mrs. Catt confidently.

Mrs. Catt will now inform an eager populace how many votes were swapped for Candidate Tyler as governor to "save" Senator Brandegee in Connecticut, and how many were swapped to "save" Senator Moses in New Hampshire, the two composing, with Mr. Wadsworth, the senatorial trio "doomed to defeat" by women's votes (a week before the ballots were counted).

Do Not Fear Overwork

BY BRICE BELDEN, M. D.

Overwork is blamed for a great part of the physical and mental ills of the world and most especially for that everincreasing product of our artificial life—nervousness. Physical effort alone has very probably but a small part in the causation of breakdowns. When one considers the immense waste of energy resulting from abuses quite outside of the actual exhausting power of physical work, the latter seems to dwindle down to a very small item in the total of the destroying influences of life.

Even those who carry the heaviest burden of civilisation—the man who works with his muscles, the builder or the factory worker—can blame, when they go to pieces, not so much a continuous release of physical effort as lack of ventilation, poor food, some chronic disorder due to inefficient living, or the wearing influence of some emotional such as hate or fear.

Another factor which misleads people into thinking that they are suffering from too great a burden of conscientious, productive work is their forgetting or not realising that through their own inefficiency they have made work for themselves or have met their tasks with defective methods.

Those who have not learned from childhood or who have not found opportunities to improve their inefficient ways and eliminate disorder and confusion from their work will naturally suffer from dissatisfaction and weariness.

When one's work is poorly done one soon learns to hate it rather than to love and master it and the natural results are impatience, worry and fear, culminating in a strain which finally causes nervousness, indigestion, and, as a result of these, indolence, which is not good for either mind or body.

In other words, work alone does little harm to either the mind or body. It is the emotions arising from our own inefficiency in living which, added to hard work, wear us out. These emotions and their causes are too numerous to enumerate, but a careful survey of one's own day's work will recall a host of these wearing anxieties and self-inflicted turmoils.

Hunting Down A Genius

Dr. William A. McKeever
Professor in the University of Kansas and an Educator of Nation-wide Repute

At a large ward school in a city I found a superintendent, a principal and a truant officer plotting for the fourth time within a month the capture of a runaway eighth grade boy, fourteen years of age. Two serious charges were lodged against this youthful delinquent:

First—The murder of the King's English.

Second—An attempt to defraud mathematics.

And the prison walls looming in the distance for the wild young belligerent.

But in the principal's office, by chance, I bumped into something of striking beauty—a wonderful model of an aeroplane, a biplane with five feet spread of wings, with wing membranes, propellor, guy wires, movable steering apparatus, stays, braces, seat and look-out for pilot, and all parts and connections constructed with the delicate arrangements of the standard of a fine piano. Nothing was missing except the engine.

All this charming mechanism was the creation of the youthful "delinquent," the wild enemy of algebra, whom "three wise men" were seeking to run down. In vain I sought for the boy; to cheer him, to praise his rare mechanical skill, and to learn from his own lips the story of his alleged wretchedness.

In this particular instance the official boy chasers were doing the very old-fashioned thing, were trying to repeat the blunder of forcing a misunderstood youth into a school of moral correction.

A somewhat later method, and now considerably in vogue, is to place such a boy in a so-called ungraded room where he is pitied, regarded as a "misfit" and expected to be improved in his struggle against the odds in the way of his possible success.

A third and better disposition of the child of one-sided talent is to place him in an "opportunity school" where he may create an appropriate career through manual, industrial and fine arts training. This excellent plan of guidance, originated, I believe, by the wellknown Miss Griffen, of Denver, and widely copied, is our best response so far to the needs of the one talent type and the motor type of children.

But I am ready to urge that we carry the matter one step further, and in case of the type of child referred to above we call it a "school of advanced talent," a school of genius, a school of honor. This particular boy should be held up before all as the pride of the school, while his highly skilled hand may be given extraordinary indulgence in its creative effort and invention. Not the boy, but the school officials, society, is the delinquent party in this case.

Here is a youth approximating the Edison type. He can quickly forget the world without, its solicitations, its English and its mathematics while he loses himself for long hours at a stretch within the minutiae of his self-chosen problem. It would be altogether sufficient for him to have a smattering of the formal school-book learning while he is being encouraged to give the world the product of his genius.

'Skilled Labor'

(From The Louisville Courier Journal)

The late Della Fox said she was a better actress than Ellen Terry. She could, after a fashion, play Miss Terry's favorite role, Lady Macbeth, but Miss Terry would not dare attempt, attired in white flannel trousers and a Norfolk jacket, to sit upon a table smoking a cigarette and sing "A Summer's Night."

The so-called white collar boys who operated locomotives during a recent strike might say that however lightly they are held by men who talk of the dignity of labor their ability is greater than that of their detractors.

The New York Herald, contrasting the white collar boy with the "swaggering skilled workman," says:

The white collar boy who never had touched the firebox of a locomotive, never had seen the inside of a locomotive, hopped into the tender and, after a few moments of instruction, stoked mogul locomotives on the railroads radiating around New York—stoked the locomotives and helped to run the trains by dozens, scores and hundreds.

It was the same white collar boy who, without military experience, even physical training, but with American intelligence and American spirit, soon got into fighting trim, jumped into the battle lines of France and whipped the veteran German armies to a standstill.

Errors of "Labor" and "skilled labor" have been so numerous recently that men like Samuel Gompers have recognised them publicly. An error of long standing has been to nourish the belief that other than manual labor requires less brains and industry than work in which employment of muscles plays a part. That the manual worker is Atlas with the world upon his shoulders, Atlas who can dump the world if it does not scratch his back soothingly, is an erroneous and bumptious view.

The skill requisite for admission to a union of manual workers can be acquired in fewer weeks than the months that are required to make an intelligent man a bookkeeper's assistant. Of course, the skill of some really skilled manual workers makes it difficult to draw the line between "artisan" and "artist," but not every man so classified is skilled.

A successful automobile manufacturer says that in his shops a raw boy is transformed into a mechanic within two weeks. The same boy could not within two years learn some of the "white collar" callings followed by men less demanding than shop mechanics or journeymen plumbers. Many of the white collar boys spend four studious years at a university acquiring fundamental equipment, years well spent.

Wonder Picture
YOU'LL pay me for every gown, every ribbon, every button! There is always a way—in Paris. You butter-fly wives incense me—always flitting in the radiance of a husband's success—which never comes. You'll settle every sou, or I'll have your reputation scourged with the whiplashes of every slanderous tongue in France!"—That's the Paris this American wife found in "The Devil's Pass Key" Don't miss this wonder picture. See it today

IS YOUR HOME SAFE

AGAINST GOSSIPS, SCANDAL MONGERS, SLANDERS?

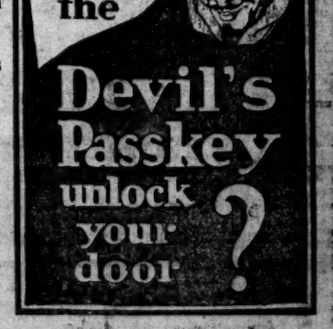
WHAT IS "THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY?" IS IT

Vanity, extravagance, suspicion, deceit, falsehood, or sefishness??

"Is it necessary for a woman to be extravagant in dress to retain her husband's love?"

Is it right that beauty and bills—and bachelors naturally come together??

SEE "THE DEVIL'S PASSKEY"



It reflects the gaiety and glitter of the Paris shops and boulevards. The bathingroom scene, in which La Belle Ordero has one of her tiny feet manucured, is like an animated drawing from La Vie Parisienne.

And then you'll meet a husband, who says to his wife:

"Your senseless passion for clothes has blackened my name and rendered all my years of effort useless. Why should I care where—or with whom—you go?"

READ HER ANSWER IN A DRAMA

More magnificent and more emotional than any which this superb theatre has ever exhibited

Prices $1.50 and 1.00 Booking at Robinson's

A WORD TO MY PATRONS

During my sixteen years experience of catering to the picture lovers of Shanghai, I have never tried any film which has given me such a feeling of satisfaction both from a dramatic and story point of view. In placing the picture the Devil's Passkey on the programme this week, I am confident I have secured the "greatest winner" in the history of the "APOLLO"
